Israeli Foreign Minister Arrives

American Secretary of State Henry Kissinger directs Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon toward Kissinger's waiting limousine for the ride from Washington National Airport. Allon met this morning with President Ford and then rejoined Kissinger and other State Department officials for lunch where they discussed Israeli-U.S. issues. (UPI)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Controversy over President Ford's nuclear arms agreement with the Russians is growing, and its future is uncertain.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., the main congressional critic of the accord, says American taxpayers will have to spend "tens of billions of dollars" to build the weapons contemplated in the ceilings to which Ford and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev agreed in principle at Vladivostok.

He says the Ford administration should go back and negotiate a pact calling for actual arms reductions rather than a ceiling which allows the United States to build by 1985 all the nuclear weapons it planned to build anyway.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger says if Congress rejects the agreement and insists on renegotiation it should appropriate $5 billion to $10 billion for more nuclear weapons. He said that would be "the only possible incentive" to persuade Russia to negotiate a better agreement.

Jackson's remarks were made Sunday in a television interview (CBS "Face the Nation"); Kissinger's in a Saturday news conference.

The administration's international trade bill has been held up for three years in a dispute between Jackson and Kissinger over Soviet emigration, a possible clue what could happen to the arms accord.

Under the agreement, the United States and Soviet Union would be limited to 2,400 strategic bombers and missiles. Of these, 1,320 missiles could be equipped with multiple warheads.

Based on statements by Jackson and Kissinger during the past week and reports from officials close to them, these are their conflicting positions:

Jackson

—The ceiling of 2,400 bombers and missiles is too high. It should be 1,760.

—The ceiling on multiple warheads is "wantonly high" and will encourage a race by both sides to build up to the ceiling.

—Verification of multiple warheads is questionable, if not impossible.

—The accord makes no provision for reductions of strategic arms in the immediate future.

—Soviet missiles are capable of launching heavier pay loads than their U. S. counterparts, and this advantage has not been equalized.

Kissinger

—The ceilings are a "major breakthrough" because, for the first time in the nuclear arms race, neither side will have to worry that the other is trying to achieve significant nuclear superiority. "For the first time in the nuclear age, for a 10 year period, the arms race will not be driven by the fear of what the other side might be about to do..."

—Failure of Congress to approve the accord, on top of the delay in the trade bill, would jeopardize U.S.-Soviet detente.

—The greater lifting power of Soviet missiles should not unduly concern the United States. These heavy Soviet missiles primarily threaten U. S. land-based missiles, which constitute only 25 per cent of the U. S. strategic arsenal. U.S. nuclear missile submarines and the Strategic Air Command would be able to retaliate effectively if the U. S. land-based missiles were wiped out.

—The Vladivostok agreement will require the Russians to reduce some of their missile force since they currently possess nearly 2,600 missiles and bombers. The United States which possesses only 2,200, will be able to continue its Trident submarine program, and its B-1 bomber program.

—Verification of the warheads is not as difficult as had originally been thought. U.S. intelligence knows which Soviet missiles can be equipped with multiple warheads and has observed that Soviet missile silos will have to be modified to accommodate these missiles.

Statistics Show Recession

But, How Severe and How Long?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The argument over whether the nation is in a recession was put to final rest by November's economic statistics. It is.

The White House joined economists in and out of government in agreeing that a recession exists, and the dispute shifted to how severe it is likely to be. Some economists said it will be the longest of the post-World War II era.

Unemployment in November reached its highest level in 13 years. On the brighter side, the first faint signs that inflation may be abating became visible.

Reports on the economy stream from the government almost daily. To give the full picture of the tugs and tendencies, here is UPI's monthly boxscore of the latest reports:

Unemployment: Joblessness rose in November to its highest level since 1961. The unemployment rate of 6.5 per cent was sharply up from October's 6 per cent. For the first time this year, total employment declined. The number of jobless reached nearly 3 million. Since October, 1973, the unemployment rate has increased nearly 40 per cent and the number of unemployed by 1.9 million.

Inflation: The Consumer Price Index increased by nine-tenths of 1 per cent in October, the latest month for which figures are available. But the increase for non-food products was six-tenths of 1 per cent, only half as much as the average monthly increase during the first nine months of this year. But October food prices rose at a seasonally adjusted rate of 1.3 per cent —normally the food index declines in October. For the year, the CPI stood at 12.2 per cent over October, 1973. The index showed prices have risen 53.2 per cent since 1967. Real spendable earnings: With inflation wrung out statistically, take-home pay measured in buying power fell 4.9 per cent from a year ago. Profits: Corporate profits, adjusted to eliminate the effects of inflation on the value of inventories, rose by $1.1 billion during the third quarter of this year.

Monthly Boxscore Gives News

Wholesale prices: Indicating some relocation of inflationary pressures, wholesale prices of industrial commodities rose only 1.1 per cent in October. Along with September's rise of 1 per cent, the increase was the smallest for a two-month period in a year despite increases in auto prices. However, food prices continued their ascent, rising 4.7 per cent in October. For the year, the wholesale index rose 22.6 per cent. Sales: Total sales of manufacturing, wholesale and retail businesses fell by three-tenths of 1 per cent in September, another reflection of the recession. The drop was the first since last December. Productivity: Revised figures showed output per manhour fell at an annual rate of 2.4 per cent during the third quarter of 1974. This was the fifth drop in the last six quarters. Unit labor costs —the costs for labor for each unit of production —rose at an annual rate of 13.1 per cent in the third quarter.

Output: The output of factories, mines and utilities fell six-tenths of 1 per cent in October, the first dropoff since last winter's oil boycott. Trade: Despite the $2.2 billion spent on imported oil —a 7.7 per cent increase in a month —the value of U.S. exports exceeded imports in October by a seasonally adjusted $29.4 million, the first trade surplus in six months. September had seen a $233.3 million trade deficit; in August, the deficit was $1.1 billion.

Indicators: The Commerce Department's composite index of leading indicators —an overall summary of economic activity —showed the economy slumped by 1.3 per cent in October, and by 3.3 per cent in September, a record decline for a single month.

Very Wet But Not So Wonderful

Raindrops form ripples in this inpromptu lake formed Sunday along Woodstock Mill Hill Road—the result of a weekend downpour that soaked shoes, flooded streams and stalled cars throughout Ulster County. More than 2.6 inches of rain were recorded Saturday and Sunday at Cooper Lake; just three-quarters of an inch fell in Kingston. Had it been snow, we'd still be digging. (Freeman photo by Carey).

Sell Florida Home, Nixon Advised

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Close friends of former President Richard Nixon say he'll have to sell his Key Biscayne home to stay solvent, according to the Philadelphia Sunday Bulletin.

The newspaper quoted Robert H. Abplanalp, multi-millionaire developer of the aerosol valve, as saying that he and C.G. (Bebe) Rebozo told "a weak and wobbly" Nixon that "he has to sell the Key Biscayne properties to stay within his means."

In an interview, Abplanalp told the Bulletin that he and Rebozo, after making "quite careful projections," estimated that Nixon's annual income will average $200,000 from his pension and proceeds from his writings but that a good portion of the money would go to legal and medical fees.

Abplanalp said in the interview that he and Rebozo passed on the financial advice to the former president when they met with him on Nov. 26 at Casa Pacifica, Nixon's San Clemente estate.

The disposal of the Key Biscayne properties, known during the Nixon presidency as the "Florida White House," to a nonprofit foundation headed by Abplanalp and Rebozo was the principal money-saving measure discussed by Nixon and his friends, according to the Bulletin.

"For the first time in years, Mr. Nixon has become conscious of what it costs to live. And it's been our idea to help him make up a budget he could live with," Abplanalp was quoted as saying.

He also said in the interview that Nixon explored the possibility of planting Casa Pacifica in "corn, beans, tomatoes and lettuce" to make money. He said the "truck-gardening plan" was finally discarded "not because Mr. Nixon was reluctant," but because there was not enough acreage and would not be worth it for a farmer to plant, according to the Bulletin.

He told the newspaper that the idea appealed to the former president not only as a "cost-cutting measure," but as a means of producing something.

"It was something positive to him, after all the setbacks he's had all the despair he must have suffered," Abplanalp was quoted as saying.

The Bulletin said that the interview was the first Abplanalp has granted since Nixon's resignation on Aug. 9.

YWCA Expansion Application Is Denied

Crunching Collision

One woman was killed and at least 10 persons were injured when this commuter bus collided with a car on the North Bergen, N. J., viaduct and then struck an abutment. Police said the bus was about one mile out of the Lincoln Tunnel when the accident occurred. (UPI)

KINGSTON By unanimous vote, the Kingston Zoning Board of Appeals has denied an application by the YWCA for a variance that would permit construction of a 4,800-square-foot, one-story addition to its present facilities on Clinton Avenue and Malden Lane.

In its three-page decision, the zoning board indicated that approval of the YWCA's expansion plans would create "an insurmountable parking problem" and would add increased traffic congestion to that immediate uptown area.

At a public hearing on the variance request held Nov. 19 at City Hall, opponents of the YWCA's expansion plans also contended that the historic nature of the Malden Lane area would be damaged if the 'Y' was allowed to erect a new building there.

But Zoning Board chairman James Plunkett told the Freeman that that argument carried very little weight in the board's ultimate decision to deny the application. "Had the plans conformed to all the zoning regulations," he noted, "they could have gone ahead without our approval, regardless of any impact on the historical nature of the area."

The zoning board reserved decision on the Y's request following the public hearing. The members met later to discuss the application, and to review points that were brought up at the hearing.

The zoning board based its decision on several specific sections of the city's zoning ordinance. The ordinance states that, in an O-2 district, "Membership clubs shall not erect a building nearer than fifty feet to any street or property line" and "parking requirements for parking of passenger automobiles be provided in a ratio of one space for each five members."

Because of the size of the property and the proposed building, the zoning board noted that placement of the new building at least 50 feet from the street or property line would be impossible, and that it would be equally impossible to provide the 100 spaces of parking mandated by the ordinance.

Four paragraphs in the zoning board's decision indicate the major reasons for the variance denial:

"There is a considerable business area, including buildings containing offices and a hotel, within one block, and a park immediately across the street from the YWCA. The parking and traffic problems that already exist are considerable, particularly during large gatherings at the hotel and/or concerts at the park."

"The testimony indicates that there are approximately 300 persons participating in YWCA activities... Looking to the future and the increased activity, this Board anticipates that the parking and traffic congestion would be unacceptable.

"It is apparent that the commission which compiled this Zoning Ordinance was gravely concerned with the problems or parking arising from the conduct of a membership club and its effect on the surrounding neighborhood. It appears that the restrictions which were written into the Ordinance governing the placements of the building on the lot and parking requirements were designed to avoid such problems."

"It is also apparent that the YWCA must expand its now inadequate facilities or face a drought of membership to the detriment of the community. The Board must decide which takes precedence, an indispensable community need for continued and expanded YWCA activity or the prevention of an insurmountable parking problem growing from applicant's present plan."

Throughout its decision, the zoning board emphasized its awareness of the YWCA's space problems and the services that it provides to the community. But the board also added, "The overall purpose of any zoning ordinance is to control the growth of the community and protect all of its citizens against the inroads of uncontrolled expansion."

$4 Thousand in Watches Stolen From Rudolph's Jewelers

KINGSTON Major burglaries continued to plague the area over the weekend as thieves made off with more than $4,000 worth of watches from a Kingston Plaza jewelry store, and more than $2,000 worth of furniture and other items in a break-in at a Town of Saugerties residence.

In Kingston, burglars shattered a plate glass door at Rudolph's Jewelers, apparently climbed through the hole they had made, and gathered up 30 expensive watches before leaving.

According to city detectives, most of the watches taken were lying on top of a counter. The burglar or burglars also smashed a showcase and removed five more watches.

The total value of the missing watches was set at $4,164. According to the store manager, Richard Jackson, the most valuable watch taken was worth about $350.

Jackson said the burglar or burglars bypassed many items of valuable jewelry.

"Evidently they were looking just for watches," he said.

The break-in was discovered shortly after 11 p.m. by a city patrolman. Detectives said the burglary occurred sometime after 7 p.m., when Jackson had last checked the store.

The burglary at Rudolph's marks the second time in less than a month the business establishment has been broken into. Some $435 worth of watches and jewelry was reported taken Nov. 16. Detectives have made an arrest in that case, and indicate there is apparently no connection between the two incidents.

In the Town of Saugerties, burglars made off with some $2250 worth of furniture, including a sofa, tables, chairs and lamps, a stereo and silverware from a reportedly unoccupied house on People's Road.

Town police said the theft was discovered Sunday afternoon by one of the owners of the building, Ronald Robins.

Burglars who apparently carted items off in a truck, entered the building by cutting a screen and breaking a window, according to Saugerties Town Police.

Pattern on Plant Site...

Report Is Unchanged

STAMFORD
Mid-Hudson Pattern for Progress — which decided this summer that location of a nuclear-fueled power plant in the Town of Lloyd would have substantial economic and land-use benefits — has taken much the same stand in a report specially prepared for the Temporary State Commission to Study the Catskills.

Released by the commission today, the Pattern report lists several advantages that would accrue to the area should the proposed 2,300-acre site be accepted for nuclear development. Many of the same advantages were cited in a Pattern study prepared last year for the Atomic and Space Development Authority, which is trying to determine the suitability of the Lloyd location for nuclear or fossil plant construction.

The report does not discuss safety and health issues. According to Pattern's latest report, the Lloyd site:

• "... is now largely suited for only scattered residential development, which would be uneconomic to service, or for open space. And power plants with large buffer zones could be a means to help preserve this area for open space use."

A press release issued by not usually possible with fossil fuel plants. Pattern's report also acknowledged the widespread opposition that has been generated around the proposed nuclear development plans in the Town of Lloyd. Obviously aware of the sensitive nature of nuclear development in the Mid-Hudson Valley, the commission's executive director, Albert G. Hall, emphasized that the Pattern report does "not reflect commission policy or its final recommendations."

The Pattern report, however, did not deal exclusively with the proposed Lloyd site. It also:

• Recommended that a proposed 1,200 megawatt nuclear plant be located near Cementon (on the Ulster-Greene County border), instead of at a proposed site in Athens, which is farther to the north.

• Recommended that a 700 megawatt fossil fuel plant, also considered for the Athens site, be located outside the Catskill region and closer to New York City.

• Recommended clustering of additional steam powered generating plants on the already-mentioned site in the Town of Lloyd, rather than spreading them throughout the region.

Created in 1971, the Study Commission's purpose is to make recommendations to the Governor and New York State Legislature for improving the general quality of life in the Catskill Region. The Commission will evaluate and consider numerous independent study reports before making its final report to the Legislature in March, 1975.

The Catskill Study Commission today states that Pattern "was not requested to evaluate health and safety issues, or the need and justification for these facilities..." Pattern's report does contend, however, that "given the governmentally required safeguards, nuclear systems emit virtually no air pollution, and discharge little more heat than from fossil fuel units. Nuclear plants offer better possibilities, for an aesthetically pleasing plant design. They occupy more acreage, which provides a larger buffer between them and their neighbors. This buffer area, which can amount to 500 acres or more, also can be used for recreation, open space preservation, wildlife management programs and the like — something that is

Adjust Bond Rates, Says Levitt

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — State Comptroller Arthur Levitt has recommended that the State Housing Finance

Agency renegotiate its bond ing conditions have made the fees higher than warranted.

Rose, Guthrie and Alexander of New York, a firm with which former President Richard M. Nixon and Mitchell had been associated.

The comptroller, in an audit of the agency covering operations through 1973, said Sunday night its annual bond sales had increased from $52 million in 1961, when it was formed, to $518 million in 1972.

Despite the increase, he said, the fee paid to Mudge, Rose, Guthrie and Alexander remained the same even though the later, larger bond issues required less work and returned greater fees.

The audit noted the agency had sold $3.7 billion in bonds and $7 billion in notes during its 13 year history.

The Housing Finance Agency was set up to provide mortgage loans to state-supervised limited profit housing agencies and mental health facilities, State University projects, youth facilities and senior citizen centers.

Sullivan Hospital Strike Ends

LIBERTY, N.Y. (UPI) — The board of trustees of the hospital workers' union at Community General Hospital, has approved a proposed contract, laying the way for expected membership approval of a work agreement to end a four-week strike at three hospitals in Sullivan County. About 300 workers picketed Community General's three branches in Monticello, Liberty, and Calicoon since the walkout began Nov. 11. The strike forced all three units to close, and patients were transferred to hospitals in other counties.

Hospital director Martin Rosenbloom said the hospital could be back in full operation by Thursday if the union rank-and-file follows Sunday's action by the union's trustees in the next several days.

Shoppers Beware

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz has repeated his annual warning to Christmas shoppers on the prowl for bargains to "beware the sidewalk salesman."

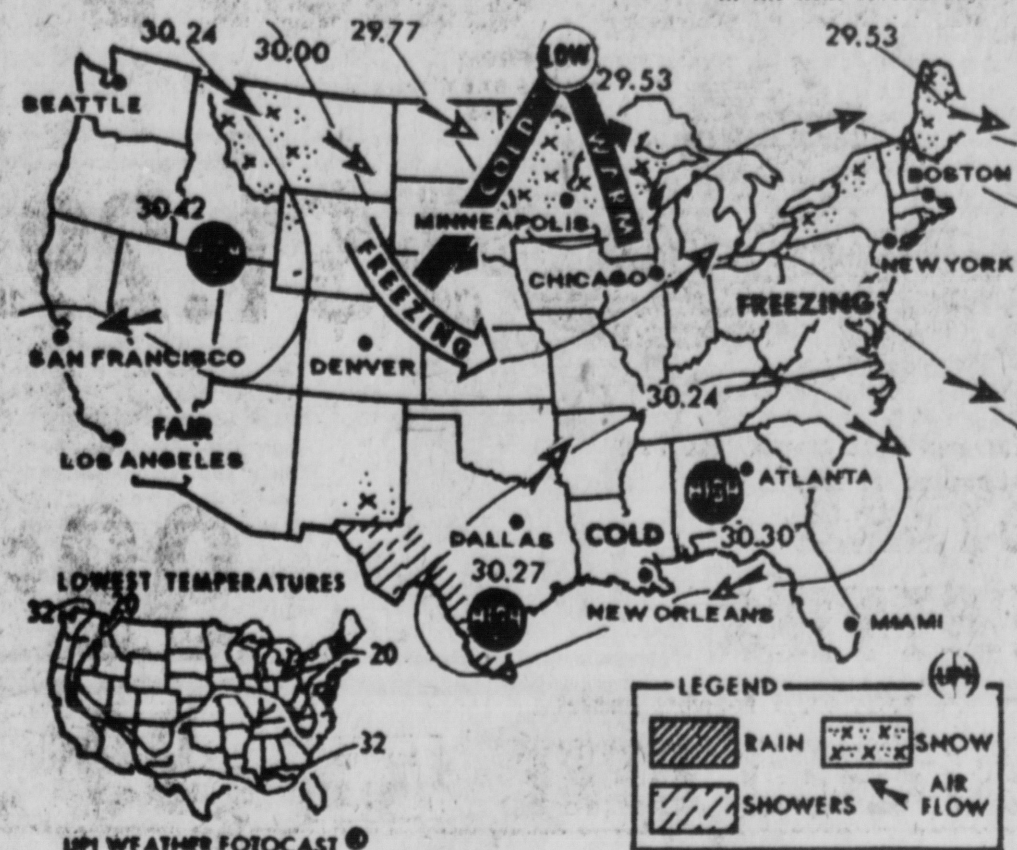

The attorney general noted Sunday that the Christmas buying season — with its emphasis on haste — is a favorite time for gyp artists and he cautioned against "huge" bargains offered by itinerant salesmen.

Favorites of such operators, Lefkowitz said, are "expensive perfumes" which turn out to be toilet water scented with the fragrance of the high cost perfume and "famous brand watches" which are often copies bearing names similar to the favorites of such operators, Lefkowitz said, are "expensive perfumes" which turn out to be toilet water scented with the fragrance of the high cost perfume and "famous brand watches" which are often copies bearing names similar to the genuine article.

He suggested Christmas shoppers avoid doing business with persons or firms not known to them and make a thorough investigation before completing a purchase.

The attorney general also said buyers should not be misled by dealers luring them into stores with advertisements and then trying to push off a higher-priced off-brand article.

Settlement Hopes Slim Despite Return of Makarios

NICOSIA (UPI) — The leader of the Turkish Cypriot minority on Cyprus says the return of Archbishop Makarios has left "very slight hope" for a settlement with the divided island's Greek Cypriot majority.

Rauf Denktash told a news conference Sunday the Turkish Cypriots are pessimistic about future negotiations, but are still looking for "some sign of hope" from Makarios.

Makarios, who returned from exile Saturday and resumed the presidency, said he would oppose partition of the island between ethnic Greeks and Turks.

The Greek-led national guard deposed Makarios last summer, touching off Turkey's invasion of Cyprus and occupation of the northern half of the island.

Denktash, vice president in the island's elected government, said Cyprus is heading for partition unless the two sides can come to terms.

"I have very slight hope that negotiations will be useful," Denktash said. But he said he still wants the archbishop's "strange new peace-making role" to succeed.

He said he does not consider Makarios leader of all Cyprus despite the prelate's constitutional election. He said he intends to deal with Makarios as an equal.

Denktash complained that Makarios is willing to discuss self-government on Cyprus as long as there's no geographical separation of the island.

"You cannot give self-government to the communities without a geographical basis," he said. "If that's the common line, then we are at an impasse."

Makarios told some 130,000 supporters Saturday that selfgovernment for the two communities was only possible without the mass transfer of populations. But Denktash said transfers are necessary. "When we have a Turkish region we want it to be a Turkish region with the Turks an overall majority of the population," he said.

Greek Cypriots outnumber Turkish Cypriots four-to-one on the eastern Mediterranean island of 700,000.

Greeks Abolish 142-Year-Old Monarchy

ATHENS (UPI) — Thousands of chanting Greeks danced in the streets today, celebrating an overwhelming, two-to-one referendum vote to reject the monarchy.

"Let's turn the palace into a school," celebrants shouted as Athenians converged on downtown Constitution Square, waving flags, blowing car horns and shaking hands.

Greeks voted by a resounding 68.8 to 31.2 per cent margin in Sunday's referendum to live in a republic and abolish the 142-year-old monarchy.

With 92 per cent of the ballots counted, there were 2,899,282 votes in favor of a republic and 1,318,827 in support of a monarchy.

The republicans won large margins in the traditional monarchist bastions of southern Greece as well as in the country's antimonarchist urban centers.

The decision cleared the way for the Greek parliament, holding its first session today, to begin work on a new constitution and prepare for presidential elections.

King Constantine, who fled into exile during the military dictatorship, learned the results in seclusion at his home outside London. An aide said he planned to issue a statement today.

"We don't need a king, we want to be free," 19-year-old student Nicos Georgopoulos said in Constitution Square, where Greeks had gathered in 1843 to force their first king, Otto of Bavaria, to give them a constitution.

Constantine Caramanlis, Greece's conservative premier, said a 60-year period of political uncertainty "has been decisively eliminated" by the referendum.

Miki New Prime Minister

TOKYO (UPI) — Takeo Miki, a veteran legislator with a reputation for honesty, took over as prime minister today, replacing a scandal-marred predecessor he helped drive from office.

The lower house of the Diet (parliament) overwhelmingly elected Miki prime minister today within hours of outgoing leader Kakuei Tanaka's formal resignation.

Miki's Liberal Democratic party, which controls the Diet, gave him a 278 to 117 vote victory over Tomomi Narita, chairman of the opposition Socialist party.

Sanzo Nozaka, head of the Communist party, received 39 votes; Yoshikatsu Takeiri, chairman of the Koemito party, picked up 30, and Ikko Kasuga, chief of the Democratic Socialist party, won 19.

Miki, a member of the lower house for 37 years, became the 66th prime minister since Japan adopted the parliamentary system of government in 1885.

The 67-year-old leader, nicknamed the "Mr. Clean" of the Liberal Democratic party, resigned as deputy prime minister last summer because of what he called Tanaka's "money power politics."

BOCES Open House 'Success'

NEW PLATZ

An open house program by the Ulster County Board of Cooperative Educational Services (BOCES) held Dec. 4 was termed a success by BOCES officials, Milton L. Reynolds, BOCES board president, Ben Miller, vice president, and Michael M. Aronica, director of vocational education.

One of the "pleasant surprises" was the large number of high school age youngsters who toured the facilities asking questions and demonstrating interest in programs offered, officials said.

Numerous exhibits, working models and examples of work performed, prepared by students and teachers, highlighted the evening.

According to officials, inquiries were most frequent concerning health occupations, as reflected by the practical nursing and dental assisting programs.

In addition to the open house, students from school districts are being transported to BOCES facilities in New Paltz on a daily basis so that they may also visit the exhibits and ask about careers.

"Being aware of what is available, the process of success in chosen careers and variations of work within those careers form the backbone of the selection process," Aronica said. "To this end BOCES is devoting unlimited time and energy."

No Moratorium on Safety

Generally speaking, auto manufacturers have capered like lambs in spring (though not in public, of course) since Congress voted down the mandatory seatbelt interlock system. Detroit took this as a welcome sign that the lawmakers, who have passed a lot of auto safety legislation during the past several years, were now going to be more sensible — that is, less insistent about cars being made increasingly safe, less vulnerable to damage in crashes, and less polluting.

This reaction is not surprising. The auto makers have a history of having to be dragged into building safer, less pollutive, easier-to-repair cars. Consequently, they should by all means not be accorded the decisive influence in the matter of auto safety. Detroit appears to want a moratorium on new auto safety standards. The public interest would be better served by giving fresh impetus to the push for greater safety — all the more so because research has shown that far more could feasibly be done along these lines.

We applaud the stand taken by a group of five members of Congress, three senators and two representatives, that "the need for a vigorous program is greater now than it has ever been." We quote with approval their rationale: "With the removal of the interlock and the continuous buzzer, seat belt usage is bound to decrease substantially. An effective reminder system is vitally necessary to prevent a catastrophic reduction."

These crusading lawmakers said something else of importance in their letter to James Gregory, head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. They pointed out that "while Congress mandated the removal of the interlock system and the continuous buzzer, it did not order the department to 'roll over and play dead.'" As has been remarked in other connections, Right on! Let the highway safety people vigorously fulfill their responsibility, which is to push hard for safer cars. A moratorium on safety is nonsense.

Cart Before the Horse

A report from a Food and Drug Administration advisory panel urges that anti-perspirant sprays containing zirconium not be used until questions about the chemical's safety are resolved. There is a high irony content in the panel's recommendation, since millions of Americans already have used zirconium sprays.

The panel's concern is well founded. Tests on monkeys have shown that such sprays have a decidedly adverse effect on the lungs. Inhaling zirconium, it is thought, may produce fibrous growths leading to serious respiratory disease. On the basis of such evidence, one firm withdrew its zirconium sprays.

But others are still on the market. Why? Why did the FDA not insist on safety tests before, rather than after, millions have used a dubious product? The agency appears guilty of a notable failure to safeguard the public interest.

A Billion's a Billion

It is somehow comforting to know that even in Britain, now, a billion is a thousand million. This is something new on the tight little isle, where since the 16th century Britons have maintained that a billion is a million million — not a thousand million as the Americans and French have it.

The American-French meaning was given official sanction the other day in Parliament by no less a figure of authority than Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey. His references to billions of sterling in his budget speech plainly carried the thousand-million meaning widely recognized in international financing circles.

It all came about by a process that might best be described as accepting the inevitable. Said a British Treasury spokesman: "There has been no ruling on the matter. We are just adopting common usage." So henceforth a billion is a thousand million, even in tradition-bound Britain.

Berry's World

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — A Greek military hero, who fought beside American troops in Korea and later was tortured unmercifully by the Greek dictatorship, is now seeking treatment in the United States.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

The Tortures of a Greek War Hero

He is Maj. Spyridon Moustaklis, now 48, who began his military career against the Nazis in World War II and then fought the Communists in the Greek civil war. He bore arms against the Communists again in Korea where he won six U.S. Greek and Korean citations for his bravery.

But when the Greek colonels took over the Athens government in 1967, Moustaklis was thrown into a military prison for his democratic views. He was tortured in the presence of the hated head of the military police, Dimitrios Ioannidis.

The mistreatment, particularly beatings, left him paralyzed and speechless except for a few simple words. He was shunted into an Athens hospital to vegetate.

But friends got word of his plight to a prominent British specialist, Dr. Peter Schurr, who visited Moustaklis in Greece and found some hope. His spirit was strong, despite permanent damage to his system.

At the suggestion of American doctors, a Greek exile leader, Elias Demetracopoulos, lobbied to get the tortured hero into Walter Reed Army Medical Center and even agreed to pay the cost of well over $130 a day. But the Pentagon turned down the application.

Now, thanks to pressure from Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., and others, the Pentagon has reversed itself. Shortly, Moustaklis will journey to the United States for evaluation at Walter Reed, with the new Greek government paying all the expenses.

TAX-PAID-ROMANCE: The chief counsel of the General Services Administration has spent thousands of dollars of the taxpayers' money on a whirlwind romance with another man's wife.

The government Lochinvar is Harold "Ted" Trimmer, who flew with a beautiful associate on romantic escapades and charged the expenses to the taxpayers as official business. He was then associate administrator, the No. 3 man in the government's vast house-keeping agency.

So taken was Trimmer with a lovely young trainee, Joan Riordan, that he promoted her in 1971 to her present job as national coordinator of the GSA's information center in 37 cities.

Not long thereafter, they embarked upon trips to several of the 37 cities, including Atlanta, Boston, Chicago and New York City, where they bedded down in luxurious hotels.

Their frequent official trips finally roused the suspicion of the lady's husband, Lee Riordan, who followed them to New York City. He drove all night and surprised them in a double bed at the Statler-Hilton.

Trimmer fled in wild disarray, leaving his T-shirt under the bed and his watch under the dresser. Riordan quickly photographed the evidence.

Then he sued his wife for divorce and Trimmer for alienation of affections. Confronted with the evidence, Trimmer confessed in a sealed deposition to his indiscretions. He settled out of court for $6,500.

Riordan, meanwhile, raised a fuss with the GSA, which exiled Trimmer briefly to a telecommunications center. But he is now back in a top job as GSA's chief lawyer.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Bitter squabbling has erupted in the backrooms of the White House. There have been sharp differences, for example, between White House staff chief Don Rumsfeld and President Ford's closet aide and adviser, Bob Hartmann.

Grumbling has been heard inside the White House against the President's chief counsel, Phil Buchen, over his unwillingness to call the tough shots on legal matters. He faltered, for example, over the Justice Department's failure to produce good background reports on nominees for top jobs. The check on would-be fuel czar Andy Bigson, for one, failed to shake loose the skeletons in his closet.

"Take That Hill!"

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

ST. LOUIS — Unfairly or not, the thimbleful of Republican governors and governors-elect who survived the Democratic landslide of Nov. 5 were outraged that President Ford could not make a brief appearance at their midwinter conference here last week after his long journey to the Far East two weeks ago.

Indeed, intensive negotiations had started in mid-November with low-level White House aides to arrange a visit by Mr. Ford that would lend Presidential endorsement to party-rebuilding efforts. Yet, despite repeated telephone calls to the White House by host Gov. Christopher Bond of Missouri, presidential aides insisted Mr. Ford could not spare a couple of hours. Contact was never made with Dean Burch, Mr. Ford's political advisor until his resignation this week, who took no interest in the governor's appeal.

This non-appearance by a President who was sharply criticized for travelling to real estate conventions in Las Vegas added to the funeral gloom at the governors' conference. Even before they learned he would not appear, the governors were grumbling over Mr. Ford's performance as both party chief and national leader.

Their aggravation did not peak until the close of the morning session on Monday when word spread that even William Seidman, the highest White House aide scheduled to meet the governors, was going to back out on his scheduled appearance Tuesday morning. With tempers rising among the governors, White House aide James Falk, Mr. Ford's chief liaison with the governors, rushed to a pay phone here with an SOS to the White House. That firmed up Seidman's appearance and also brought Falk's boss, Domestic Council chief Ken Cole, to the Tuesday session.

The governors' unhappiness with Mr. Ford goes beyond reviving the Republican party. They believe he is spending far too much time on foreign travel at a time of deepening recession and general economic crisis at home. The President's WIN — Whip Inflation Now — public relations campaign is ridiculed as outdated in the face of national unemployment expected to approach 8 per cent next summer.

Gov. William Milliken of Michigan, arguing that "mere rhetoric cannot save our free enterprise system," came here handing out lapel buttons of his own contradicting the White House WIN pins. His pins say BAC — Buy a Car.

Milliken's reelection by 114,000 votes against multiple adversity in the depression-threatened automobile state was a stunning offset to his party's national disaster, but not a single White House political aide has bothered to call him for a post-election analysis.

Worse yet, Milliken's carefully considered economic program sent to Mr. Ford in a letter one week before the election has never been answered. He proposed a blend of tax reform, vastly more public service employment, extended unemployment compensation and public works. But Milliken's proposals were not considered important enough to warrant a reply.

An hour spent with the governors by Jerry Ford would scarcely make a dent on the staggering political problems of his defeated party. There was no such false hope here. "The GOP has a pinhead for a base and we're kidding ourselves if we think it can be turned around in anything like two or three years," Michigan state chairman William McLaughlin told us.

But that handful of Republican governors who survived last month would have been a good place to start. The fact that the President and his political staff didn't see it that way made a bad situation worse, alienating the governors at a time Mr. Ford needs every possible ally.

Warning Given Ford

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The High Cost of Our Congressmen

Congress may be injurious to your wealth. It is the only body which cannot be investigated by another body. We have 435 Representatives, each of whom earns $42,500 a year, costing $18,487,500.

Each member, under law, is permitted to spend $168,000 to get himself reelected every two years. This also applies to 100 hard-working Senators, who earn the same salary and are offered the same losing proposition to get reelected.

The day after election, 98 Congressmen who lost took off in jets for junkets to foreign countries. These are called lame ducks, but they fly exceedingly well and charge the taxpayers for every mile.

Rep. Peter Frelinghuysen (R-N.J.) had announced that he is retiring from public office. So he made a trip to China at public expense, then flew to London for more goodies.

Forty per cent of Congressmen make a free trip each year. Abroad, they often use foreign exchange funds at the U.S. embassies for incidentals. If, as President Ford advises, we Americans should tighten our belts, shouldn't we first find out if Congress allowed us to keep our pants?

How much does the Congress actually cost you? In salaries, 535 elected men and women cost $22,735,500. Milton Gwirtzman, who served as assistant in the Senate, writes in The New York Times Magazine that the budget is $328,000,000.

This leaves a gap of $300,000,000, give or take a few million.

In the Franklin Roosevelt Administration, each Congressman had an office, a secretary and an assistant. Today, in addition to his own salary, each Congressman is allowed $192,000 a year for office help. He is also permitted at least one office in his home district.

Congressmen have a total of 16,000 men and women working in their offices. These people are paid by the government of the United States but spend a good part of their time making the Congressman look good.

When I visited the office of Senator Robert F. Kennedy (D-N.Y.) years ago, he had 39 persons on the pad. Gaylor Nelson (D-Wisc.) has 42. Each Congressman is allowed an administrative assistant at $37,000 a year. Behing him are the press agents.

The Congress, like the scorpion, seldom stings itself to death. Once, in 1946, it passed an act limiting the Senate to 15 committees, the House to 19. This turned out to be painful to worthies who wanted to get on committees.

So they established "sub-committees." The Senate has 147; the House, 133. Everybody climb aboard. Staff workers literally administer the work of these committees. They cost $50,000,000 a year.

This is not to say that the members of both houses do not work hard. The opposite is true. They have made the job impossible. Each member reaches his office early, reads mail, takes phone calls, has from two to four committees waiting for his presence.

He must help some old lady back home get her Social Security check, assuage an irate editor, read a speech someone else wrote, attend meetings, gulp lunch, trot to the Senate or House in time to vote (without, let it be said, having time to read the bill), give work orders to keep his staff busy, and go to his hotel at night with a briefcase bulging with homework.

It is that, and more. Many businessmen constituents expect him to get Defense Department contracts for them. For this he needs hustle and a callous fist for desk pounding. He loses more often than he wins.

On the opposite side, he is loved-hated by rich lobbyists who want favors. He costs more, I feel, than he is worth. Worst of all, he can't seem to get legislation out of committee so that he can vote on it and do what he's paid to do—enact wise legislation.

'But They're Doing Okay in Peoria and Davenport and Nashville'

The map of the United States is dotted this autumn by pockets of prosperity almost unrivaled in the nation's history despite the recession.

Business in general has been sliding downhill most of the year, but the National Federation of Independent Business says the number of unfilled jobs being offered by its members has risen since January.

Although the number of jobs going begging has fallen since July, about 20 per cent of the association's member firms said they were looking for workers and having trouble finding them.

Companies in some cities where business conditions remain good also said they were having trouble finding workers. For example, Gates Learjet, the Wichita aircraft producer, has put on 650 additional people this year and needs 200 more skilled workers.

The Labor Department's Manpower Administration listed approximately 50 metropolitan areas where unemployment was way below the national average as of Sept. 30, the latest available. Checking into some of these areas, United Press International found things had changed for the worse during October and November, such as the Carolinas and some parts of the Midwest, as the automobile, rubber and textile industries began to feel the cold winds of recession.

Nevertheless, conditions remained excellent in most of the favored areas with unemployment running 4 per cent or below against a national average of around 6 per cent, business generally booming and the communities building new parks, municipal buildings, museums and the like.

It should be recalled that much the same thing happened in 1929-30. The Great Depression hit the northern states hard that winter but it took virtually a whole year for the South to feel it. It probably would have taken longer had it not been for a severe drought that forced President Hoover to extend emergency aid to southern cotton, dairy and cornhog farmers.

Wichita presents, perhaps, the brightest business picture in the country. Unemployment dropped to 3 per cent in Wichita in October from 3.2 per cent in September. Sales of Beech Aircraft and Cessna Aircraft have soared even more than those of Gates Learjet. Cessna has had a 32 per cent sales gain this year and Beech has had the best sales and earnings in its history.

Other national firms whose Wichita operations are booming include Metropolitan Life Insurance, J.I. Case Co., the farm implement maker, and National Cash Register while the Bell System's Western Electric Co. is getting ready to build a big plant there.

Wichita also is prosperous because it is in the middle of a wheat growing belt that produces other foodstuffs as well. The city is spending $30 million on new schools and is building a planetarium, a zoo, an art museum and a museum dedicated to the culture of the American Indian.

I would like to thank the members and auxiliary of the Stone Ridge, Cripplebush and High Falls Fire Departments for their efforts in trying to save my house which burnt down Thanksgiving evening.

BARCLAY KNITWEAR CO., INC.

Iowa and parts of Illinois are not feeling the recession too much. Kenneth Hays, a director of the Iowa Employment Security Commission, said his state had an unemployment rate of only 2.1 per cent as of the end of October. Hays thinks that rate held through November but said it might go up this month because of seasonal layoffs in the building industry. He said overall employment in the state's two chief cities, Des Moines and Cedar Rapids, is holding up remarkably well.

Peoria, Moline, East Moline and Rock Island in Illinois and Davenport, Iowa, form a quadrangle of cities that are doing phenomenally well. Peoria, the town that used to be the butt of so many vaudeville jokes ("I spent a week in Peoria last Sunday") is a distribution and manufacturing center and also is in the prosperous Illinois corn-hog belt.

The Quincy, Ill., Herald-Whig said conditions were pretty steady in its area, even automobile sales were holding up well. The paper said it believed that business conditions were good in many smaller towns across the country.

In Indianapolis, John V. Barnett, executive vice president of the state Chamber of Commerce, said, "The brightest spot for Indiana is the steel industry which has been doing great. Prior to the coal strike, it was running at capacity. Remember, Inland Steel announced it is going to spend $1 billion at its plant in East Chicago, adding 1,500 permanent jobs."

Nashville, Memphis, Dallas, Fort Worth and Austin, Tex., are other bright spots looked into by UPI.

Nashville's jobless rate rose to 4 per cent in November from 3.6 per cent in September but that's still a rate the community is used to living with, said Edward F. Jones, executive vice president of the Nashville Area Chamber of Commerce.

Paul Lowry, business re-search expert of Memphis State University, said the city on the Mississippi is blessed in times like the present by not being heavily dependent on manufacturing employment. Only 65,000 Memphians work in factories out of a total local working force of 323,000. As a result, Lowry predicted that the Memphis jobless rate will stay at least 1.5 per cent below the national average.

Dallas and Fort Worth were among cities where the jobless rates were below 3 per cent in September. For practical purposes, a jobless rate under 3 per cent means everyone is working who can or wants to hold a job. Mark Hughes of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce said things are fine in the city and he is confident the economy of Dallas will continue to grow during the recession, even if at a slower rate.

Norman Robbins, economic researcher of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce said the city's heavy involvement in the booming petroleum and agricultural businesses insures its continued prosperity. He said a surprising number of manufacturers are expanding their operations in the Fort Worth area. The city has added 6,100 manufacturing jobs this year and the General Motors plant at Arlington, midway between Dallas and Fort Worth, is doing well in contrast with GM's problems in other part of the country.

Namath Ends His Shea Season in Show Biz Style

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Namath, who could be moving to Hollywood next season, had a dramatic show biz type finish ready for the Buffalo Bills Sunday.

Namath, playing what could be his last game as a New York Jet in Shea Stadium, threw a 36-yard touchdown pass to Jerome Barkum with just four minutes left for the go-ahead score in a 20-10 upset of the playoff-bound Bills.

The Jet quarterback, who is playing out his option and becomes a free agent May 1, said before the game it was "doubtful" he would return to New York next season. He then went out and thrilled a rain-drenched crowd of only 32,805 with his winning throw.

Even Hollywood couldn't have set a better scenario. After a scoreless first half in the mud and driving rain, Joe Ferguson put Buffalo ahead 7-0 with a 41-yard TD pass to J.D. Hill. Namath got the Jets back into the game with a 19-yard TD pass to Richard Caster after Ferguson fumbled. But Robert James blocked the extra point attempt and the Bills still led 7-6.

John Leyboldt's 36-yard field goal with 6:25 to play seemed to ice the game for the Bills but it only served to set the stage.

First, Namath dropped back to pass and was slammed into the slime as he threw the ball. He shook off the cobwebs and two plays later, threw long down the right sideline to Barkum, who stepped in front of reserve safety Donnie Walker and made a leaping catch.

Linebacker Ralph Baker, along with Namath one of only six Jets remaining from their 1968 Super Bowl club, then clinched the game with a 63-yard interception return for a score.

"Barkum broke the pattern," Namath said of the TD pass. "He was supposed to run a 20-yard out but he saw he could go and he took off. I just threw it up there and he came down with it. It was a helluva catch."

"I was running the out and I saw (cornerback) Dwight Harrison slip so I just took off," said Barkum. "When I got to the end zone, I turned and the ball was right there. I went up and it just happened that I caught it."

Walker, in a solemn Buffalo dressing room, simply called it a good catch.

"The conditions didn't have anything to do with it," he said. "Barkum just got good position on me and he made a good catch."

Namath, surrounded by nearly 50 reporters, refused to talk about his future.

"If you heard what I said before the game" he said, "then you got it. That's all I'm going to say about it. I don't know what I'm going to do. We have a game with Baltimore next week and I probably won't know then, either. I feel certain we'll get things straightened out before the draft (in late January)."

"This time of year, I just think about football and my lawyer takes care of everything else. When we do have to make the decision, it will be OUR decision."

The Jets, who lost seven of their first eight games, won their fifth in a row, matching a streak they last had in 1969, and Namath credited the elimination of errors and a renewed self-confidence with the turnaround.

"We've got five in a row now and next week we can finish up at 7-7," he said. "We just eliminated our mistakes—that's what was killing us early in the year. When we were losing, once we got behind, we had this 'oh hell' attitude. Today when we got behind, we had the feeling we could win. We didn't panic. We had some lucky plays but we had some good plays, too, and our defense played tough all the way. When you get a winning attitude, you believe in yourself, you feel you can win no matter what."

Buffalo Coach Lou Saban, whose club clinched a playoff berth last week, learned after the game that his club was relegated to the wild card berth after Miami defeated Baltimore. The Bills will open the playoffs at Pittsburgh Dec. 22 and if they win, will be on the road the next week against the Oakland-Miami winner.

"We were very loose all week and before the game," Saban said. "It might have had something to do with it but I don't think we had an emotional letdown because we clinched. The condition of the field did more to stop our offense than the Jets did. I always hate to lose but even more so since we lost on our own mistakes."

The Jets held O.J. Simpson, who gained 200 yards against them in the season finale last season to top the 2,000-yard mark, to just 48 yards, one of the lowest outputs of his career.

"They used to call us the 'Bad Weather Bills' because we won so many games in bad weather," Simpson said. "But I guess that's changed now. We thought through the third quarter we had Joe pretty well under control and then all of a sudden—wham. I thought we played good football but they got some freak breaks which turned things around."

Change of Pace

New York Jets' quarterback Joe Namath (12), who has been known to throw a pass or two during a game, found his aerial strategy bogged down in a driving rain against Buffalo in Shea Stadium

Sunday. Here in the first quarter, Namath hands off to John Riggins (44) who made a couple of muddy yards through the Buffalo line. (UPI)

Dolphins, Steelers Clinch; Redskins Are Still Alive

By United Press International

The Washington Redskins can resolve the only remaining questions regarding National Football League playoff berths tonight when they visit the NFC West champion Los Angeles Rams on national television.

A Redskins victory would eliminate the Detroit Lions, who kept their playoff hopes alive with a 23-19 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals Sunday, and the Dallas Cowboys, who beat Cleveland 41-17 Saturday.

The way things shape up now, Miami, which clinched the AFC east championship with a 17-16 victory over Baltimore Sunday while Buffalo was defeated 20-10 by the New York Jets, will meet AFC West champion Oakland in the quarterfinals of the NFL playoffs Saturday, Dec. 21, in Oakland.

Pittsburgh, which clinched the AFC Central Division title with a 21-17 triumph over New England, will host AFC wild card Buffalo Sunday, Dec. 22.

The NFC East champion (Washington or St. Louis) will play the Vikings in Minnesota, Dec. 21, and the NFC wild card team (Washington, St. Louis, Dallas or Detroit) will meet the Rams in Los Angeles the following day. St. Louis could have clinched the NFC East title, but was upset Sunday by lowly New Orleans, 14-0.

If Washington beats Los Angeles, the NFC East championship will be decided next weekend with either the Redskins or Cards gaining the title and the other gaining the wild card.

Should Los Angeles beat Washington, St. Louis would become the NFC East champ and the Redskins, Cowboys and Lions will all wait until next weekend to decide the wild card berth.

In less significant action Sunday, Philadelphia beat the New York Giants 20-7; San Diego downed Chicago 28-21; Oakland nipped Kansas City 76; San Francisco beat Green Bay 7-6 and Denver whipped Houston 37-14.

Lions 23, Bengals 19
Greg Landry fired an eighty-yard touchdown pass to Charlie Sanders with just 29 seconds remaining to upset Cincinnati, killing the Bengals' playoff hopes. Detroit's game-winning drive of 73 yards in five plays came after Cincinnati fullback Ed Williams had scored a touchdown on a two-yard burst with only 1:27 to play, giving the Bengals to a 19-16 lead.

Dolphins 17, Colts 16
Bob Griese passed for one touchdown and Larry Csonka ran for another in the first half as Miami gained its fourth straight AFC Eastern Division title.

Steelers 21, Patriots 17
Franco Harris ran for 136 yards (increasing his season's total to 927 yards) and a touchdown to help Pittsburgh clinch the AFC Central Division title. The Steelers, who led 21-10 until late in the game, started three of their scoring drives from inside the New England 38 yard line, taking advantage of a fumble, a short punt and shaky play by the New England special teams.

Saints 14, Cardinals 0
Rookie running back Alvin Maxson set a pair of New Orleans rushing records, including a 66-yard touchdown sprint and a 148-yard total, and a tenacious Saints defense shut out the playoff-bound Cardinals. Maxson broke off right tackle, picked up a key block from Jess Phillips and went 66 yards for the first Saints touchdown. It was the longest touchdown from scrimmage in Saint history. The Saints put the game away in the fourth quarter when rookie tight end Paul Seal took a handoff on an end around and sprinted seven yards for the final touchdown.

Chargers 28, Bears 21
Jesse Freitas hit Harrison Davis with a 43-yard fourth-quarter touchdown pass and then connected on a 30-yarder to set up the winning score for San Diego. Fullback Bo Matthews plunged over from the one with 5:25 left to give the Chargers their fourth win against nine losses, the same record as the Bears. San Diego's Don Woods became the seventh rookie in NFL history to run for more than 1,000 yards in a season, gaining 75 to make his total for the year 1,057.

Raiders 7, Chiefs 6

Jimmy Warren returned a fourth quarter interception 34 yards to set up a 10-yard scoring pass from Daryle Lamonica to Cliff Branch and lift Oakland over Kansas City. Oakland, with a playoff berth already locked up, chose to rest regular quarterback Kenny Stabler on a 27-degree day.

49ers 7, Packers 6

Rookie Delvin Williams ran two yards with 9:22 left for the game's only touchdown after a key pass interference call to give San Francisco a victory over Green Bay.

Broncos 37, Oilers 14

NFL rushing leader Otis Armstrong ran for three touchdowns and set two Denver team records in leading the Broncos over Houston. Armstrong, who accumulated only 90 rushing yards all last season, rushed 31 times for 183 yards Sunday breaking the Broncos' single game mark of 166 set by Floyd Little against Cincinnati in 1969. And with a game left at San Diego, the former Purdue All-American, who scored on runs of 10, 12 and 15 yards, has 1,265 yards rushing for the year, breaking the Broncos season mark of 1,133, which also was set by Little in 1971.

All That Bad Weather No Bar to Mike Boryla

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — "He didn't know you can't perform in weather like this," was the explanation offered by Philadelphia Eagles head coach Mike McCormack on rookie Mike Boryla's brilliant performance.

It was as good an explanation as any.

Boryla, a 23-year-old rookie from Stanford making only his second professional start, completed 23 of 34 passes for 240 yards and one touchdown Sunday in guiding the Eagles to a 20-7 victory over the New York Giants.

The game was played in a driving rainstorm that turned the field into a quagmire by halftime and was finished just before darkness enveloped lightless Yale Bowl. The weather was so bad that the showings from the announced crowd of 46,889 numbered some 30,000.

"It's difficult to do anything in weather like that," said Boryla, who never seemed to have any trouble shredding the porous Giant secondary despite the terrible playing conditions. "You don't like to throw that many times but you go with what works and they couldn't stop us."

Boryla's favorite target was 6-foot-4, 238-pound tight end Charles Young, another California college product from Southern Cal, who caught nine passes for 103 yards including a seven-yard scoring toss in the second quarter.

On Perfectly Horrible Day, Broadway Joe Was Terrific

By Milton Richman
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ten years ago, on Jan. 2, 1965 to be precise, Joe Namath signed a $427,000 contract with the New York Jets, making him the top paid performer in pro football.

He still is. He gets $250,000 a year from the Jets and whether he's with them again next year or whether he's with the Los Angeles Rams, he very likely will make at least that much, probably a bit more.

Joe Namath played what many considered to be his last home game ever for the Jets at Shea Stadium Sunday, turning in a masterful, titanic-like performance under wretched conditions in an accommodatingly dramatic come-from-behind 20-10 conquest of the Buffalo Bills.

On a perfectly horrible day, when a mean, hard-driving rain soaked every soul foolish enough to venture out of his warm living room, when a stinging wind from the southeast whipped up gusts as much as 30 miles per hour, and when the ooze and mud on the field made footing a perilous, sometime thing for those who had to endure it, the 31-year-old, sloped-shouldered Namath stood out there and controlled a wet, soggy football well enough to complete 8 of his 15 passes for 131 yards and two touchdowns.

If this was his local farewell, it was a fittingly appropriate one, but somehow I don't think it was.

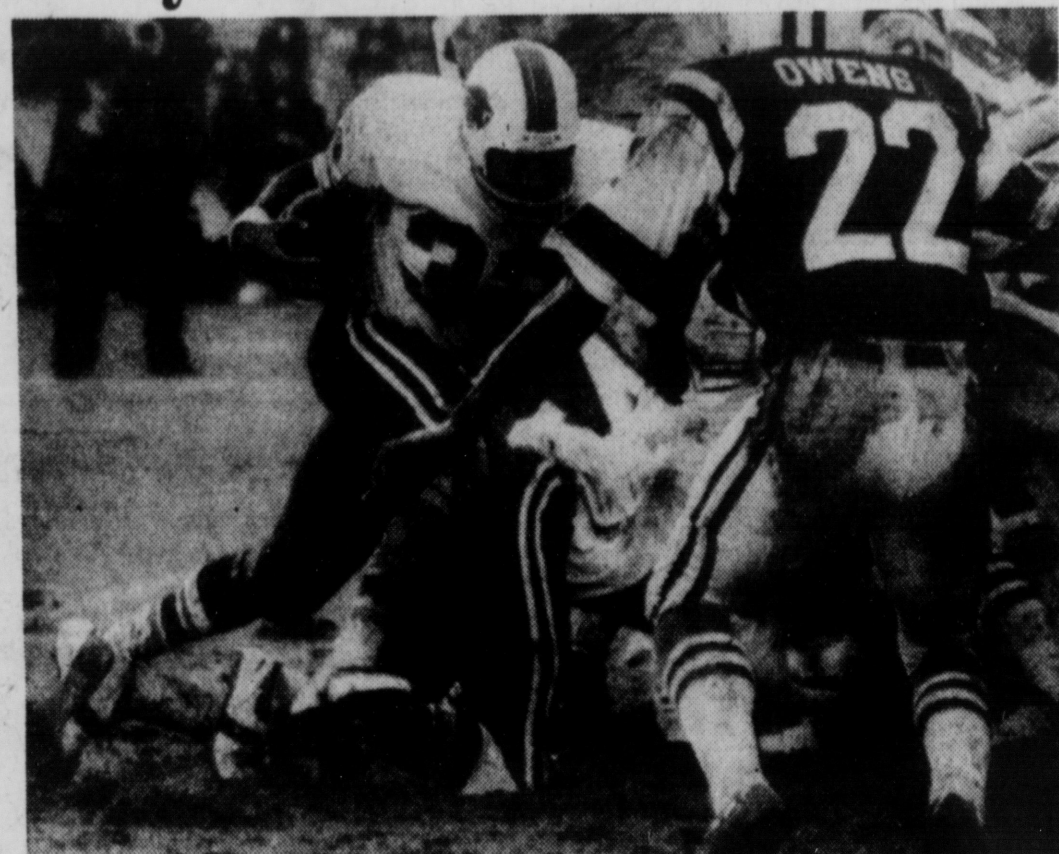

Right now there are any number of theories afloat pertaining to Namath's future.

One is that he's going to play for the Rams next year. Another is that he'll be back with the Jets next year because he wants to be with another winner, and by winning their last five ball games, they've shown him they might be an exciting team again next year. Still another theory is that Namath may be doing the Monday night football for ABC next year. From some reports I hear, the network has decided perhaps it can struggle along without Howard Cosell next year.

Everybody keeps asking Joe Namath the same thing.

Whaddya gonna do, Joe? Where you gonna play next year?

How can Joe Namath possibly tell anybody what he's

Short Gainer

O. J. Simpson (32), running star of the Buffalo Bills, bangs into the line and goes for short yardage against the New York Jets Sunday. O. J. was held to 48 yards for the day as the streaking Jets upset the Bills, 20-10. (UPI) going to do when he honestly doesn't know himself?

Oh, sure, he knows what he'd like to do, but in that regard he's like so many other people you know who'd dearly love to do something but are blocked by pure circumstance.

What he'd like to do or rather what he thinks he'd like to do, is play in a warm climate which would be more beneficial for his fragile knees, be with a team that has a shot at making the Super Bowl and one that's in an area where both the movie and tv opportunities are right next door.

Only one team fits all three descriptions and that's the Los Angeles Rams, and owner Carroll Rosenbloom definitely is interested in Joe Namath.

There's one hitch, though, and it's a big one.

Namath is playing out his option with the Jets and becomes a free agent next May 1. Say the Rams did want to sign him. They call up the Jets and ask what they want for him. The Jets say, well, we want X, Y and Z and two draft choices. The Rams then pull in their horns. In a sense it becomes a trade, and if the Rams and Jets can't get together, Commissioner Pete Rozelle steps in and specifies what the compensation will be.

Joe Namath is bound to come high; the Rams may not want to risk the compensation Rozelle would decide.

So, when all is said and done, Joe Namath winds up signing a new contract with the Jets.

Don't be fuelish.

Cavaliers' Jinx: Bullets

The Cleveland Cavaliers suddenly this season have risen to second-place in NBA's Central Division, but first place remains an unattainable goal as long as they are unable to beat the Washington Bullets.

Cleveland by five games in the Central Division, chalked up their 15th victory in their last 17 meetings with the Cavaliers by an 88-75 count Sunday night.

"Losing to the Bullets is like putting together two losses because they are in our division," lamented Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch. The Bullets' triumph extended their victory to six games and gave them the best record in the NBA at 19-6, while snapping the Cavs' eight-game string of victories at home.

"That was one of our best defensive efforts and our starting five was working well tonight," said Bullets Coach K.C. Jones.

The Cavaliers had grabbed a 41-40 halftime lead, but the Bullets reeled off 10 straight points to start the second half and the Cleveland fans let their heroes hear about it.

"The crowd got on us in that third period, but you have to learn to play with the boos," Fitch said. "We just lost our poise when the Bullets got their 50-41 lead."

Guard Phil Chenier led the Bullets scoring with 24 points; while Elvin Hayes and Wes Unseld combined for 31 rebounds. Hayes also scored 18 points. Jim Clemons and Dick Snyder led the Cleveland scoring with 14 points apiece.

In other NBA games Sunday, Kansas City-Omaha edged Detroit, 96-92; Boston dumped New Orleans, 111-101; Los Angeles defeated Phoenix, 107-102, and Atlanta topped Seattle, 102-95.

Celtics 111, New Orleans 101

The Celtics breezed past the injury-plagued Jazz as Jo Jo White scored 21 points and John Havlicek contributed 20. Jim Barnett's 29 points led the Jazz, who went down to their seventh straight defeat without starters Pete Maravich and Neal Walk.

Lakers 107, Suns 102

The Lakers moved into a fourth-place tie with the Suns as guard Pat Riley scored all 17 of his points in the final 18 minutes. Elmore Smith and Lucius Allen led the Los Angeles scoring with 19 points each, while Charlie Scott was high man for the Suns with 28 points.

Hawks 102, SuperSonics 95
Hawks' rookie John Drew scored 27 points, including a crucial three-point play with 1:47 left in the game, to pace the Atlanta victory. Spencer Hayward led the Sonics' scoring with 18 points.

Kings 96, Pistons 92
The Kings snapped a 13-game losing streak in Detroit's Cobo Arena as Ron Behagen scored eight of his 16 points during K.C.-Omaha's fourth-quarter rally. Bob Lanier had 32 points for the Pistons and Dave Bing added 19 points and 13 assists, while the Kings' backcourt duo of Tiny Archibald and Jimmy Walker each scored 18.

The Longest Reach

Mike Riordan of Washington manages to get the ball before it goes out of bounds as Jim Chones (22) and Bobby Smith (7) of Cleveland look on in first quarter action Sunday. Bullets beat the Cavs, 88-75. (UPI)

West May Turn Coach

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — Former Los Angeles Laker superstar Jerry West is thinking about turning to coaching.

He says he especially gets that feeling when he sits in the stands and watches a basketball game.

"I sit there and watch...and I think I would like to have a team that could do certain things that other teams are not doing now."

"I really think I might like to become a coach."

West discussed the subject during a weekend round of appearances in his honor at West Virginia University, where he was an All-America player for the No. 1 ranked Mountaineers in the late 1950s.

He said he had been offered a coaching job in the American Basketball Association but turned it down earlier this year.

Acker's, Boo's Undeclared

SAUGERTIES

Acker's Bar and Boo's Tavern both reeled off runaway victories to remain undefeated co-leaders in the SAA Premier Basketball League. Both have 3-0 records.

Acker's blasted The Outrigger, 91-65, and Boo's won over Ethan Allen Archery 91-75. The third game on the schedule saw Naccarato Insurance register its first victory via a 89-87 squeaker over Annandale Hotel.

Highlight of the triple header was a spectacular performance by Boo's Ray Lindhorst, who jammed in 33 points, had six assists and smashed the league's rebound record with 38. The old mark of 35 rebounds was held by Coleman Link, former UCCS star.

Tom Tegeler backed Lindhorst's efforts with 28 points and 12 rebounds, while Warren Griffton had 12 points and six assists. Allen's had Earl Edmond and John Robinson with 19 points and Harry Brink with 18. Edmond also pulled down 18 rebounds.

Acker's led Outrigger only 62-55 before exploding for a 29-12 fourth quarter margin. Three of the Barmen went over the 20-point mark, with Jim Wherry netting 25, Jim Alba 24 and Jerry Hawkins 20. Alba, a top rebounder in the area, grabbed off 23 and both Hawkins and Dave Kane collected seven assists.

Rod Chando led the losers with 16 points, Greg Kohls had a sub-par 15 and A. J. Murphy canned 14. Ted Wood had 10 points and 23 rebounds and Chando had seven assists.

Naccarato's surged from an eight-point deficit midway through the fourth period to nip Annandale Hotel. Larry Marcus scored the deciding bucket with 11 seconds remaining, while Jack Naccarato led the Insurers with 23 points.

Ron Thomas tossed in 20 points and Tim Murphy had 16 rebounds. The veteran duo of Ron Miller and Gary McDonald paced the Hotelmens, with 25 and 19 points, respectively. Miller also had 16 rebounds and McDonald 13.

Pete Cornell rimmed 19 points and Cal Fowx flipped eight assists.

Chando is the league's leading scorer with 76 points, but Mike Derrenbacher has a 30.0 average in two games. Ray Lindhorst is well out in front in rebounds with 73 and Jerry Hawkins tops the assists with 22.

Grant Sparks Revival

By United Press International

Travis Grant, Bo Lamar, and Caldwell Jones returned to the injury-riddled San Diego Conquistador lineup Sunday night and promptly snapped the team out of a six-game slump.

Grant, Lamar, and Jones, all sidelined last week with knee injuries, scored a total of 51 points in the Conquistadors' 104-92 win over the San Antonio Spurs in Sunday's only American Basketball Association game.

"If we can keep everybody healthy, we can get back into the race," said San Diego Coach Alex Groza.

The Q's, the last-place team in the ABA's Western Division with a 9-15 record, fell behind 25-8 to a hot San Antonio team in the first quarter.

But Jones was inserted to test his knee in the second period and dominated both backboards. Grant and Lamar got hot and the Q's tied the game, 45-45, at the half. San Diego went ahead 64-63 with 3:21 remaining in the third period and never trailed again. They built the lead to 102-88 with 45 seconds left.

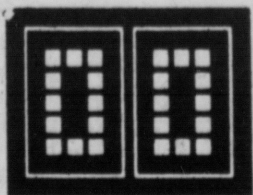

Grant led all scorers with 20 points, while Lamar had 18, Lee Davis 17 and Rones 13 points and 10 rebounds.

"We were able to run on the Spurs when C.J. Jones came in," said Lamar. "He started getting us the rebounds."

George Gervin and Rich Jones each had 17 for the Spurs, while Swen Nater and Jim Silas added 16 each. San Antonio, with a record of 16-10, is the Western Division's second-place team.

"We need to have more desire to win," said San Antonio Coach Tom Nissalke, who expressed his disgust by closing the team's dressing room to reporters after the game. "We've got to get the ball more and we have to quit standing back on defense."

No games are scheduled in the ABA tonight.

Sabres Keep Rolling

Unless the French Connection somehow gets disconnected, there may be no end to the stunning success story of the Buffalo Sabres short of the Stanley Cup.

Each member of the line, Gil Perreault, Rick Martin and Rene Robert, notched his 20th goal of the season Sunday night and the Sabres responded by running up their 11th consecutive victory, a 5-0 shutout of the Minnesota North Stars. Buffalo has lost only one of its last 22 outings, surging to a 14-point lead over the Boston Bruins in Division 4 of the National Hockey League.

"Let's face it," said Minnesota goaltender Cesare Maniago, "they're the best line in hockey. They've all got speed, they've all got shots, and you really don't know what the heck they're going to do next."

Boston kept pace with the rampaging Sabres by edging the Pittsburgh Penguins, 3-2, and in other games Sunday night, the Philadelphia Flyers gained a 3-2 victory over the New York Islanders; the Detroit Red Wings turned back the Vancouver Canucks, 4-2; the Toronto Maple Leafs beat the Chicago Black Hawks, 4-1; the Montreal Canadiens and the New York Rangers skated to a 3-3 tie, and the St. Louis Blues defeated the Washington Capitals, 3-1.

Bruins 3, Penguins 2
Boston took 46 shots on Pittsburgh goalie Gary Inness, but couldn't get the winning goal past him until Orr scored with only 4:27 left in the game. The Penguins took a 2-1 lead in the first period before Terry O'Reilly got the Bruins even at 7:02 of the second period.

Flyers 3, Islanders 2
Orest Kindrachuk's second goal of the game, at 12:21 of the final period, enabled the Flyers to edge the Islanders and boost their first-place lead to seven points over idle Atlanta in Division 1. Philadelphia outshot the Islanders, 35-13.

Red Wings 4, Canucks 2

Hank Nowak broke a 1-1 tie midway through the second period and Danny Grant and EVARL Anderson followed with Detroit goals as Vancouver lost for only the seventh time in 28 games. The Canucks still own a 13-point lead over Chicago and St. Louis in Division 2. Maple Leafs 4, Black Hawks 1

Toronto scored all four of its goals in the final period, two of them by Errol Thompson, to hand the Hawks their second loss in as many nights on home ice. Cliff Koroll had given Chicago a 1-0 lead in the second period.

Canadiens 3, Rangers 3

Montreal rallied from a 3-1 deficit on goals by Yvon Lambert and Larry Robinson, the equalizer coming at 23 seconds of the final period. The tie enabled the Canadiens to move into a first-place tie with idle Los Angeles in Division 3, although the Kings have four games in hand.

Blues 3, Capitals 1

Garry Unger scored one goal and assisted on another to enable the Blues to win on the road for only the second time in their last 31 attempts. Denis Dupere tallied the only Washington goal early in the second period.

In WHA action, the staggering Michigan Stags dropped a 7-0 decision to Edmonton, and Vancouver completed a weekend sweep by downing the Minnesota Fighting Saints, 4-2.

Also, the Toronto Toros beat the Phoenix Roadrunners, 5-2, the Quebec Nordiques beat the Houston Aeros, 2-1 the Winnipeg Jets defeated the Chicago Cougars, 5-2, and the Indianapolis Racers scored their first win in 14 games with a 5-3 triumph over San Diego.

Walton Lays Those Rumors to Rest—

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Three-time All-America Bill Walton probably won't be in uniform Tuesday night when Portland plays Atlanta here, but he will definitely be on the roster, Portland club officials say.

Reports that the 6-11 rookie center was considering quitting the Blazers and pro basketball after 17 games in the National Basketball Association were laid to rest here Sunday after Walton held a late Saturday night meeting with two of the principal owners of the Trail Blazers.

"He never really was considering not playing," said John White, the team's publicity director. "It was one of those unfortunate circumstances that occur when you have to report second-hand information."

Walton's friend and financial adviser, Sam Gilbert, a respected Los Angeles-area contractor and counselor to many former and present UCLA athletes, originated the story last week that Walton was frustrated by injuries and troubled by the conflicting lifestyles demanded in the NBA. Gilbert has since left for Switzerland and Walton never issued a public statement on Gilbert's claims.

Harry Glickman, the executive vice president of the Blazers, said Sunday, however, there are still some smaller problems to be ironed out.

"They are all minor, little things," he said. "But you have to say they are serious because they obviously are serious to Bill. There's nothing, I don't think that can't be worked out very easily."

Glickman said, "I DON'T THINK THAT THERE IS ANYTHING BOTHERING Bill that won't be taken care of by getting him healthy and playing."

Walton has missed Portland's last seven games, including four losses on the road last week, with a painful bone spur in his left ankle. Two earlier games were missed because of a dislocated finger.

In the 17 games in which he appeared, Walton averaged 14.6 points a game with 14 rebounds.

Glickman said that Walton was quite upset that the story ever came out. Walton met Saturday night here with Herman Sarkowsky, the club president, and Larry Weinberg, the treasurer. Early Sunday morning Sarkowsky and Weinberg telephoned Glickman in New York and said Walton would remain with the team and be back in uniform as soon as his injury permitted.

Glickman and Coach Lenny Wilkens then flew to Seattle to rendezvous with Sarkowsky and Weinberg.

"We discussed the things which were bothering Bill for about an hour, then Lenny and I caught the next flight to Portland," Glickman said. He said he believed from the start that once contact was established with Walton, reports of his quitting would be put to rest.

"I'm glad that's the way it turned out," Wilkens said. "Certainly we are a stronger team with Bill."

Wilkens said he didn't know when Walton would return to the lineup, but said, "it's highly unlikely" that Walton would play Tuesday night.

"He's been unable to practice for some time, so he has to be out of condition to some extent."

Basketball at Oklahoma?

Basketball may never replace football as the state sport of Oklahoma, but it no longer can be completely ignored. Under the leadership of Joe Ramsey, now in his second year as head coach at Oklahoma University, the school's basketball program has made such rapid strides in the last two years that the Sooners could be challenging for national recognition before this season is over.

Saturday night the Sooners achieved what Ramsey termed "the highlight of my career at Oklahoma" when they upset eighth-ranked South Carolina, 90-84, to keynote an otherwise predictable weekend in which every other member of the top 10 that played was victorious.

The Sooners, who have had successive 18-8 seasons and are now 2-1, got 20 points from 6-foot-9 junior star Alvan Adams, but it was the stellar play of Adams' replacement, Rick McNeil, which eventually led to the Gamecombs' downfall. McNeil, a 6-7 sophomore, came off the bench with 17 minutes left in the second half after Adams had picked up his fourth foul and cored eight key points to trigger the victory.

Duvillard Repeats

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — Rookie France ace Henri Duvillard conquered Norwegian Otto Tschudi in two consecutive runs on the 39 gate giant slalom course Sunday to win first place earnings of $4,000 in the Ford Granada Cup of world pro ski racing.

The win pushed Duvillard's earnings for the two-day ski meet to $6,500. He won $2,500 Saturday, taking second place in the 27 gate giant slalom race.

For a moment, it looked as if Sunday's slalom would be but a repeat of Saturday's action for that day's top finishers, Hank Kashiwa, Duvillard, and Jean Noel Augert. Then the fatigue brought on by back-to-back days of dual challenge ski racing began to take its toll.

Swiss rookie Josef Odermat decisively defeated Augert in the quarter finals, yet Kashiwa, a 24-year-old Japanese-American, and Duvillard, hung on and moved into the semifinals with victories over American newcomer Bobby Cochran and veteran Lasse Hmre of Norway, respectively.

Tschudi then victimized Kashiwa in the semi's, winning by .578 seconds after two runs, and advanced to the finals.

Duvillard, his downhill inertia unstoppable, went on to beat out Tschudi for his first pro victory.

Kashiwa, with a final burst of strength and a victory over Swiss youngster Josef Odermat in the consolation round finished third and skied off with a two day total of $5,500.

Kashiwa is second overall as the tour moves to Aspen, Colo., for the $30,000 Montezuma Tequila-Beconta cup, Dec. 14 and 15.

Name David Thompson All-Timer

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI) — All-American David Thompson of North Carolina State has added another feather to his hat as the only unanimous choice in the voting for an alltime Atlantic Coast Conference basketball team.

Thompson was also the only pick of 97 members of the sports media in North and South Carolina, Virginia and Maryland still active in college ball.

In the voting, a player received two points for a first team selection and one point for a second team vote.

Art Heyman of Duke, and Charlie Scott, Lennie Rosenbluth and Billy Cunningham — all former North Carolina players — were the other first team picks.

Dipping Into the Christmas Grab Bag

By Ira Berkow
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — It is quite fitting that books about sports should be glutting the market at Christmas time. After all, there is an attempt to promote both as noncommercial enterprises. Yet sports and Christmas are so commercially bloated, both bear little resemblance to their original inspirations.

Nonetheless, there are some fine sports books out today, and, as is our yearly custom, we excerpt a small part of some of the better ones to give the prospective reader and the gift-buyer a taste of what lies between the covers.

"Remember the white llamaskin rug Namath had on the floor of his Manhattan apartment? Remember how that rug symbolized to the press a superior sexual prowess? Well, that same rug was carried on the Jets' books as a club asset. Werblin bought it and Werblin had it put in Namath's apartment. In short, Werblin built Namath brick by brick." From "The Gray-Flannel Flunkin', The Movers and Shakers of Pro Football," by William Henry Paul (Lippincott, $7.95).

"Or take Ted Williams — after all he did to the fans in Boston. He spat on them, gave them the obscene and vulgar gesture, and, Christ, he hits a home run and they all stand up and cheer. You can't boo a home run," Shirley Povich, from "No Cheering in the Press Box," recorded and edited by Jerry Holtzman (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $7.95).

"Tuesday April 15, 1834. Longitude 42 degrees. Blew very hard during the night, and the sea is running high. We are now hove to, with the helm lashed. The sea being so rough it is very awkward at meal times, with a good chance of losing your grub, or of having someone else's in your lap." From "Diaries from the Days of Sail," edited by R.C. Bell (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $10).

"Catcher Tom Haller was laughing. 'Reduce the load of juice, Gaylord,' he said. '(Umpire) Sudol is getting suspicious of that splashing sound in my mitt.' From 'Me and the Spitter, An Autobiographical Confession,' by Gaylord Perry with Bob Sudyk (Saturday Review Press, $6.95).

"Once there was a man who went to Heaven, where he was met by Saint Peter and taken to a gigantic football stadium for a game. Down on the field along the sidelines was a fat old man in a baseball cap, running back and forth, jumping up and down and gesturing hysterically.

"Who is that madman?" the new arrival asked Saint Peter.

"That's God," Saint Peter replied. 'But he thinks he's Woody Hayes.' — an Ohio fable." From "Buckeye, A Study of Coach Woody Hayes and the Ohio State Football Machine," by Robert Vane (Harper's Magazine Press, $7.95).

"So for anybody who saw the match, it was the funniest tennis routine. Every time Billie Jean came up to the net to volley she'd hit the ball straight back to Riggs and he'd let it go by because his legs have a lot of steam in the direction he predetermines he wants to go, but he doesn't have the agility of a young man to recover once he has committed himself." From "Tennis Clinic," by Dennis Van der Meer and Murray Olderman (Hawthorne, $8.95).

"Opposite page; top left, beautiful women are part of the international grand prix scene. These are acting as standard bearers.

"Secretariat is a prodigious 'doer,' consuming sixteen quarts of oats a day, two more than Riva Ridge, and all the hay he can eat. He eats almost continuously, but tidily — some oats, then a sip of bottled water, some hay." From "The Kentucky Derby," by Peter Chew (Houghton Mifflin, $15).

"Well, judge, would it be better to kill somebody or tear up a hotel room?" I said. 'Was it that bad?' the judge said. 'Yeah, I wanted to smack him right in the mouth, but he'd just had a heart attack and I was afraid I'd kill him. Then I'd be up for manslaughter.' The judge said, 'I see what you mean. But that'll be two hundred fifty dollars anyway.' From "Some Are Called Clowns, A Season with the Last of the Great Barnstorming Baseball Teams," by Bill Heward with Dimitri V. Gat (Crowell, $6.95).

No Clear Favorite in World Table Tennis

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — China and Yugoslavia dominated the Scandinavian Open table tennis championships last week while Japan, once a powerhouse in the sport, disappointed but there still is no clear favorite for the World Championships in Calcutta, India, next February.

With the championships drawing near, the picture still is cloudy. There is no dominant team of the kind China fielded in the 1960s and Japan a decade earlier.

At Karlshamn, scene of the Open in southern Sweden, China won three titles, two of them in the ladies field, Yugoslavia took the men's singles and the mixed doubles, Japan won the ladies' team event and Sweden the men's doubles.

China won the men's team competition and it appeared odds-on a Chinese emerging as the singles champion, but in the end the best it could do was place one man in the semifinals of the men's singles and saw both its pairs eliminated by Europeans in the doubles semis.

Dragutin Surbek, 30, a former Yugoslav junior gymnast champion, retained his singles title, demonstrating again that his forehand loop is a stroke which the Chinese cannot cope with.

Players like Sweden's former world champion Stellan Bengtsson and Kjell Johansson, who do not impart the same amount of spin on their looped drives, became easy prey for the Chinese.

In the doubles, however, Bengtsson and Johansson displayed almost flawless teamwork for the pen-holder East-erners. They defeated two strong Chinese combinations en route to their second straight doubles title by concentrating on a Chinese weakness, the backhand.

The situation was the same in the mixed double where Yugoslav teams dominated with Anton Stipanovic, beaten singles finalist, and Erzebet Korpa eventually winning the title.

On the distaff side the Europeans have yet to find a weapon against the tricky Chinese serving and speed of play. The Chinese captured three of the ladies' singles semifinal places with unseeded Huang Hse-Ping defeating Chang Li in the final.

Paper Clips Nearing Extinction

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON

It's really nothing to lose a night's sleep over, but we thought you'd like to know that America is in the throes of a paper clip shortage.

What was suspected several months ago here at The Freeman has since been confirmed by the National Geographic Society: those innocuous little bits of bent wire, which office workers have so callously taken for granted these many years, may soon follow the penny candy, the five cent cigar and the ten cent subway ride into immortality.

It was first thought that a phantom "cliptomaniac" was staging nocturnal raids on the pencil drawers in the Freeman news room; once-healthy piles of gold and silver clips showed a disconcerting tendency to mysteriously vanish overnight. Those whose desks always seemed to be brimming with clips were watched with just a glimmer of distrust.

But, alas, the real culprits are the paper clip manufacturers themselves. According to the National Geographic, they find it more profitable today to make high-grade steel than low-grade paper clip wire.

O'Reilly Stationery Co., Inc. in Kingston shed a bit more light on the subject recently. A spokesman there said it is the medium sized paper clip — the one most commonly used — that has become an endangered species.

"We just can't get them," said the spokesman. "We've been out for two or three months now. And we don't have any jumbo's left either."

Apparently, all is not lost, however. O'Reilly's reports that they still have an adequate supply of the smallest sized paper clips. "But everyone wants the regular ones. They'll just have to settle for the little ones, or nothing at all," said the spokesman, with a tone of finality.

While O'Reilly's won't have to worry too much about long lines of irate paper clip hunters clogging their aisles during the holiday season, there is some cause for concern on other fronts. The international banking and commerce industry, for instance, simply cannot have loose bits of unattached paper fluttering about the office. Outright panic has been caused by lesser crises.

Steps are already being taken to meet the shortage, but they're not working too well. Some businesses have reportedly tried plastic clips, but they don't have the flexibility or strength to withstand the rigors of day-to-day use. Wire staples, simple to attach, are a pain in the neck to disassemble.

National Geographic says that 20 billion paper clips are consumed each year, but one manufacturer has estimated that only 25 per cent are actually used to hold papers together. Credit old-fashioned American ingenuity and inventiveness for some of the other uses:

- Before the advent of pantyhose (we're reliably told), paper clips often held up secretarial stockings.
- Clips are perfect for scraping pipe bowls and clearing clogged pipe stems. Others serve as toothpicks, manicure tools or chips in office poker games.
- With some help from a sturdy rubber band, paper clips can be discreetly fired at moving targets up to 30 paces away.
- Anyone with the slightest bit of imagination can create an intricate piece of art with a few hundred clips twisted in a variety of shapes and forms.

Such folly, however, may soon vanish from the daily office regimen. The day is fast approaching when the person who stoops to retrieve a lowly paper clip from the office carpet will no longer be scorned and ridiculed by fellow employees.

Union Rejects New Milk Contract

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hopes that normal milk supplies for most of the metropolitan area would return to normal by today, dried up with the flat rejection of a tentative contract which would have brought striking deliverymen and plant workers back to work.

John Kelley, president of the 2,800 member Teamsters Local 584, said the rank and file members Sunday voted 1,008 to 487 against the pact, falling short of a necessary one-third majority need for ratification.

While many workers said they did not like the basic wage package, Kelley said most rank-and-file members objected to the commission paid deliveries based on the wholesale price of milk.

Kelley, who worked out the agreement early Saturday with the Greater New York Milk Dealers' Committee and recommended it be approved, said talks have been rescheduled for today.

The strike, which began Wednesday night, has affected 10 million consumers in New York City, Long Island and parts of Westchester. Deliveries to hospitals and nursing homes were not interrupted, a request made by Mayor Abraham D. Beame, however school children have had to go without milk with their lunches since the strike began.

Beame, returning Sunday from the Democratic miniconvention in Kansas City, said he was "extremely disappointed to learn that the members of the striking union failed to ratify the proposed pact which would have ended the milk dispute."

Deliverymen now get a 1.5 per cent commission based on the current wholesale price of milk, which averages about 40 cents a quart. Under the proposed contract, the deliverymen's commissions would have continued to be based on the current wholesale price of milk, despite any future wholesale price hikes.

In addition, commissions on all new customers on a deliveryman's route would be based on an even lower price — 32 cents a quart.

"I feel very bad about their rejection," Kelley told reporters after announcing the vote results. "It was a good contract. It did not sell them down the river."

However, union members interviewed outside the meeting hall expressed extreme dissatisfaction with the contract worked out by Kelley and the management group, which represents 115 milk processors in the metropolitan area.

The proposed contract would have given plant workers a $34 weekly raise the first year and a $20 weekly raise the second. They now earn an average of $216 a week.

The contract also would have provided an $11 weekly raise in the first year and $20 a week the second for deliverymen, who now earn an average $193 a week, plus commissions.

Man Arrested on Paltz Campus

NEW PALTZ A New York City man picked up late Saturday by State University College at New Paltz security personnel on a charge of loitering, wound up facing additional charges of felony assault and attempted escape after he allegedly tried to flee from the peace officers.

State police said Raul Fernandez, 21, of 2023 Lexington Avenue, New York, was initially taken into custody by security personnel shortly before midnight.

Taken to the "security control center" on campus,

Fernandez allegedly tried to escape and injured two security officers who attempted to stop him, police said.

Fernandez was additionally charged with attempted escape and two counts of second degree assault.

Fernandez was turned over to state police and confined in Ulster County Jail in lieu of $1,500 bail following arraignment.

Neither of the campus security officers, who were not immediately identified, was reported seriously injured, authorities said.

Schenectady Man Killed

TOWN OF ULSTER A 60-year-old Schenectady man was killed late Saturday while walking along Route 9W in the Town of Ulster when he was struck in the head by a mirror on a passing pickup truck and decapitated.

Killed in the mishap was Marshall Dalrymple of 102 Jay Street, Schenectady.

Hurley State Police said Dalrymple was walking along Route 9W about four-tenths of a mile north off Route 209 when he was struck by a pickup truck operated by Robert W. Gillespy, 24, of 100 Elm Street, Saugerties.

Police said relatives of the victim told them he was visiting in the area, and was known to frequently hitchhike.

Coroner William S. Keyser ruled the death accidental.

No summonses were issued in the mishap, which was investigated by state police, assisted by Town of Ulster constables.

Yule Lights in Red Hook

RED HOOK The Red Hook Businessmen's Association has decided to return this year to Christmas lighting, but on a reduced basis. Christmas lighting will be limited to five hours nightly and will start Dec. 16 instead of the weekend following Thanksgiving. Last year, out of concern for the energy crisis, Christmas lighting was done away with in Red Hook.

"In order to continue these decorations we need your financial support," said Robert Bowman of the Christmas Lighting Committee. "We have appreciated this support in the past and hope you will be able to help us again this year."

The committee asks that donations be sent to Donald E. Norton, Treasurer, Christmas Lighting Fund, 14 W. Market St., Red Hook.

Suitcase Had No Bomb

ELLENVILLE A young California man was charged with attempted robbery Sunday night after he walked into an Ellenville diner and, claiming to have a bomb concealed in a suitcase he carried, allegedly demanded money from a cashier.

Ellenville Billage Police said the man, Robert Louis Parks, 26, of Rona Park, Calif., allegedly told the cashier at the Coachman Diner, Main Street, that he would "blow the place up" if the money from the cash register was not turned over to him.

An off duty sergeant with the Ellenville Police Department who was in the diner at the time called headquarters, and police apprehended Parks at the diner.

The suitcase contained no bomb, police said.

Following arraignment on the charge of first degree attempted robbery, Parks was confined in Ulster County Jail in lieu of $2,500 bail.

Six Years Later, Not Miserable Any More

DEAR ABBY: Will you do me (and countless thousands of teen-aged girls) a tremendous favor and re-run the letter and your reply from your column of September 6, 1968?

I wrote it, and now I want to write a "P.S." Thank you, "D".

DEAR "D": With pleasure: "DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl and my problem is my mother. I hate her. It may sound terrible to you, but I really hate her. I used to think I would get over it, but I know now I never will.

Sometimes I think I will go out of my mind if she doesn't quit picking on me. I never do anything to suit her. She doesn't like my clothes, my hair, my friends or anything.

My friends are not bums, either. They are good kids and they aren't wild or on pot or anything like that, but my mother says they look like hippies, and they aren't.

Please help me, Abby, before I run away from home. I cry myself to sleep at night because my mother is so hateful. If I babysit, she makes me put the money in the bank. Other girls can buy records or do whatever they want with the money they earn.

Don't tell me to talk to my father. He's always on her side. And don't tell me my mother "loves" me and is only doing things for my own good. If you print my letter, don't sign name or I'll get killed.

MISERABLE IN PHOENIX

DEAR MISERABLE: Your letter doesn't shock me at all. I receive many such letters each week. Almost every normal teen-ager alternately loves and hates his parents.

It's not easy to be criticized, restricted, corrected, and disciplined day in and day out. But parents who really love their children, prove it by consistently letting their children know what is expected of them. Parents who are "soft" and permissive rear confused, insecure children.

By Abigail Van Buren

I don't expect you to agree with me today, but keep this letter and read it again three years from now, and then you'll understand it perfectly. Good luck, dear. You're lucky. You are loved."

DEAR ABBY: Now, for my "P.S." I am no longer "Miserable." I am grateful.

I am 20 years old, Abby, and I just found that clipping tucked away in my 1968 diary. (I am "cleaning out my closets" because I am going to be married next June, and I'll be moving.)

You were so right. My parents were stricter than the parents of my friends, but now I realize that they set extra high standards for me because they loved me and wanted me to be proud of myself.

I am saving a copy of that clipping to show my daughter if I am ever lucky enough to have one, because I intend to raise my daughter just like my mother raised me, and she may "hate" me for the same reasons I "hated" my mother. I am graduating from college in June, and marrying a wonderful young man on the following Saturday.

How can I thank you?

Gift Suggestions for That Person On Your List 'Who Has Everything'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Now comes the time for the annual check through the advertisements and catalogs gift shopping for that "person who has everything."

Better start with an ample bank balance. Most of the unusual suggestions seem designed for luxury incomes. For her, for example, there is a Fifth Avenue jewelry store's necklace and pendant combination of sapphires, diamonds and emeralds for $115,000.

Another gem, a rare black boulder opal from Australia, is featured at a Dallas store for $150,000, its 106 carats polished but unset.

In the fur department, 'tis indeed the season to be jolly. For her, the same store has a black chinchilla cape at $22,500, and a floor length caramel-dyed broadtail coat with sable cuffs at $12,500.

And for the whole family, if it likes games, a New York/London store offers a $5,000 version of Monopoly. The board, made in England, is of gold-tooled leather and the houses and hotels are solid gold and silver. The game comes in a rosewood box lined with velvet.

For sports fans, the ultimate gift this year is offered at the new Coliseum between Cleveland and Akron, Ohio. For an initial investment of $22,200 and an annual payment of $13,300, the sports fan and nine of his or her friends get a 15-by-20-foot private wining, dining and entertaining area right on top of the action of hockey, basketball, tennis and other attractions.

That miniature model T Ford, a half-scale reproduction of a 1910 Tin Lizzie, is on the market again this year at $695 from a New York store which says the minicar puts along at a speed up to 10 miles per hour.

The same store offers a bicycle rickshaw, once the Japanese taxi but famed all over Asia, for $1,495. This one comes from India.

Texas ideas for gifts run Texas-size in imagination. That Dallas store is offering an N-Bar-M mouse ranch, "possible fulfillment of your childhood dream, and a paradise for mice," for $3,500. It measures 48 by 36 by 18 inches and is complete with ranch trappings such as pastures, coral, fencing and windmill.

The store always has offered "his" and "hers" gifts—this year, they are Hoverbugs, twopassenger crafts that move or hover six to eight inches off the ground or water. The price, $3,640 each.

'The Girl Next Door' to the State House

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass. (UPI) — Weekend trips are traditional for New England college students, but not the type that led Katie Hanna down the campaign trail to the New Hampshire legislature with more votes than two incumbents, one her high school principal.

Actually, Ms. Hanna, 21, a senior at Mt. Holyoke College, one of the academically prestigious Seven Sisters, is used to it. Last year, while her classmates were off on social visits, she made weekly treks home in a longshot campaign that saw her beat Keene, N.H.'s mayor for a delegate spot to the state constitutional convention. Before that she was a delegate to the 1972 Democratic National Convention.

Nevertheless, when the state House of Representatives convenes in January, she'll look like everyone's little sister among a group of older men. But then, that's the way she planned it.

A liberal Democrat in a stanchly conservative GOP state, she won apparently by taking her cue from the McGovern and McCarthy 1972 and 1968 presidential primaries, in which the two liberal Democrats attracted unexpectedly sizeable votes by grassroots campaigning.

New Hampshire, with the largest legislature in the Western hemisphere, and the smallest legislative districts, may be one of the few places where Ms. Hanna could have met her campaign goal of knocking on every voter's door.

Once there, always in a skirt and sweater, never jeans, she sold her image as the girl next door, unless the constituent wanted to talk issues, in which case she was more than happy to oblige.

"The original plan was for me to run as the good kid down the block and win on my smile," she said. "After a while, however, I couldn't stand it so I started talking issues."

Ms. Hanna, who stressed land use planning and tax relief for the elderly in the only state in the nation without sales or income levies, said that most voters didn't want to talk issues. Others, she said, only wanted to discuss her age and sex.

It was at the constitutional convention, to which she was sent by a 3-1 margin over Keene Mayor James A. Masiello, that she argued successfully for an 18 year-old age requirement for gubernatorial candidates.

The resulting publicity, plus that given her as the nation's second youngest 1972 Democratic convention delegate, made some constituents wary, she said. She dealt with the problem by stressing the contributions a young woman could make in a male dominated body whose members averaged 67 years of age during the last session.

"People just kept telling me politics was a dirty business and wanted to know when I was going to get married and settle down," she said. "A lot of them seemed amused by me."

Many more, however, were impressed. She won handily, getting almost twice the votes of one incumbent, who also won election from the two-delegate district, and burying a threeterm lawmaker who was her high school principal when she got her political start as student government president.

Part of the explanation, she said, lies in the Granite State's politics and its voters.

"Some people said that even though they didn't agree with my views on some things, I deserved the job because of the work I put in," she said. "I think that's what makes New Hampshire politics a little different than elsewhere, you can get to talk to the people."

In addition to her canvassing, Ms. Hanna said she sent out more than 1,600 individually written pieces of mail asking for support from the district's 2,400 registered voters. Then, she said, there were personal touches, like the 77-year-old man whose vote she got by baking him a birthday cake.

Ms. Hanna, whose $246 campaign was financed by her family, says she'll leave school for the spring semester to make the $200 job a full-time occupation, one of her campaign promises.

She said she's looking forward to the session, although there may be one problem.

"Most of the real caucusing is done after the close of the session at one of the bars," she said. "I imagine I'm going to have to carry proof of age with me."

Woman Has Sextuplets, Five Still Living

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — "The doctor told me I would probably have triplets," said Mrs. Charlotte Lange, 26. "When the fourth and fifth and sixth ones were born I was completely shocked."

The sixth and smallest of the sextuplets—rare even for women using fertility drugs—died within four hours of his birth Sunday. He weighed only 1 pound, 15 ounces. The surviving three boys and two girls appeared to be healthy, doctors said today. The delivery lasted 44 minutes and came three months early for Mrs. Lange, the wife of an armored car guard. She had been taking fertility drugs.

Mrs. Lange's obstetrician, Dr. Vincet Nola, said she bore quadruplets a year ago but none lived and she and her husband, Alvin, 29, had been childless.

"We knew by X-ray that we had three infants," Nola said of the births Sunday. "I thought there might be four. But after the fourth one was born it was apparent there were two more to be born."

The weight of the surviving sextuplets—2 to 2½ pounds—was good for their 27-week term, Nola said, and they were born naturally without surgery.

Doctors said the small boy who died was in critical condition almost immediately after his birth at O'Connor Hospital.

The other five babies were taken to nearby Valley Medical Center and put in the care of a special neo-natal team.

Mrs. Lange was reported in excellent condition and her husband went home to rest after the all-night wait in the hospital, a hospital spokesman said.

Miners Seeking An Agreement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Contract talks between representatives for 6,000 coal mine construction workers who walked off their jobs at midnight and the soft coal industry lasted until the early morning hours today with no agreement being reached.

A spokesman for the Bituminous Coal Operators Association said the two sides recessed discussions at 7 a.m. EST., but agreed to meet again later today.

Picket lines have already gone up at some coal mines, delaying the return of coal miners who ratified a new contract last week.

Danny Adelman, a United Mine Workers spokesman, said "some progress" was made during the all night talks, "but we've still got a long way to go to get a new contract."

The strike by the mine construction workers will have the same effect as the 24-day walkout by 120,000 coal miners because the miners traditionally refuse to cross picket lines of other workers.

The United Mine Workers and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association signed a new contract Thursday, and miners were expected to be back at work no later than Monday. But a separate contract agreement between the construction workers, also UMW members, and the Association of Bituminous Contractors, was never reached and talks bogged down Saturday.

The construction workers' contract expired along with the UMW pact Nov. 12.

Coleman said late Sunday, "We've still got a lot of non-economic language we're trying to work our way through but we're hopeful that we're within, as I like to say, shouting distance of an agreement," he said. "I think there's a chance we can work out an agreement by the wee hours if we're lucky."

He said the main issues were wage structure classifications and seniority.

The coal strike has already cost an estimated $5 billion in total production losses especially in the steel and railroad industries.

Doesn't Stop Colds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Federal Trade Commission judge ruled today that Listerine mouthwash does not prevent or cure colds or sore throats as the company has claimed for years.

The judge said "kill millions of germs on contact," administrative law Judge Alvin L. Berman said, but it also leaves millions more alive. He said further that none of that has anything to do with cold fighting in the first place.

In an order still subject to review by the full commission, and to appeal in the courts later if upheld, Berman directed Warner-Lambert Co., the makers of Listerine, to run corrective advertising for two years. In all future advertisements for Listerine for that period the company would have to confess.

N-B Work Completed

POUGHKEEPSIE
A two-month, $114,000 work project on the Newburgh-Beacon Bridge which resulted in periods of one-way traffic during night hours has been completed on schedule, according to an announcement today by Milton Zwickel, chairman of the New York State Bridge Authority.

The work was done to raise "dams" (metal sections of the roadway resembling interlocking fingers) to make them flush with the road surface, resulting in a smoother, quieter ride.

"I am pleased to note that because of the cooperation of the motoring public and the contractor there were no accidents during the one-way traffic periods," Zwickel said.

Your Astrograph

Tuesday, Dec. 10, 1974
ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will come out well in any dealings that you have with older individuals, especially if it's a joint venture.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Rather than jump to conclusions where a friend is concerned, give her the benefit of the doubt. She won't let you down.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Conditions are favorable today relating to your career. Though you may not get material benefits you seek, you'll be rewarded another way.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You will be able to spot opportunity in situations today that aren't evident to others. Act on your own, if necessary.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The timing is favorable to bring to a conclusion a matter that has been a source of irritation lately. Hold out for your terms.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't be hesitant about tackling big ideas today. If your approach is practical and well thought out, you'll fare quite well.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Devote as much time as possible now to your most ambitious interests. You'll be compensated handsomely for well-directed efforts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Confine risks or gambles you take at this time to situations where you alone have absolute control or authority.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're fortunate today, others will be looking out for your interests and doing a better job of it than you could yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll find you're luckier in areas where you can deal with several people at the same time, rather than negotiating on a one-to-one basis.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In areas where you really focus your efforts, you'll find that achievement is now possible. Set definite goals.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Do more than just dream about your plans. Small steps taken at this time will make larger strides possible in the near future.

Dec. 10, 1974

Events this year will bring about desirable changes in your basic life style. You'll also enter into a lasting arrangement with an older, reliable person.

OUTSIDE: (Q.) Monica says she only likes me as a friend. She likes Jim and I guess I'm jealous of Jim because I don't want to see Monica hurt.
 I like her a lot. There are days when I can't eat or sleep. I know she's the right girl for me. As a matter of fact, she's the only girl for me. I want to go with her but she wants to go with Jim. What can I do? —Suffering in California.
A.) If Monica likes Jim and Jim likes Monica, you are on the outside and not qualified to say that Jim is hurting Monica. Only you are being hurt, it appears to me, by refusing to face the facts. Do so now, and stop your mooning over Monica.

WHICH?: (Q.) Larry is going to be a doctor. He and I have been dating for two years and I like him a lot. His family likes mine and is like mine — it has an average income. Last summer I met Bill. He is going to be a doctor too. His father is a doctor and quite wealthy. Bill lives in another city, but writes me and calls me and visits me. I like him as much as Larry, and in much less time.
 The question is, should I let family financial background come into my mind when I consider whom to marry? I know that if I married Bill we would have it much easier, at least in the beginning. — 17 in New Jersey.
(A.) You are not now ready to make a decision between Larry and Bill. You may never be faced with such a decision.
 If you are, you should put love and compatibility ahead of how much money Bill's father has.

spade ruff, five clubs and two diamonds. If the trump finesse is on he will make a grand slam." Jim: "When I saw the hand played South counted to twelve quickly and proceeded to win the first diamond in his own hand. Then he cashed the ace of spades, ruffed a spade, led the nine of trumps, played his own eight smiled fatuously when the nine held, led the jack of trumps and stopped short when East showed out. Then he played his queen. West plunked on the king and led his king of spades. South ruffed in dummy but the party was over. He could not get back to his hand to pull the trumps and was down one."

Oswald: "How different it would have been if South had stopped to think at the first trick. He would have won in dummy. Led the nine of trumps and then the jack which would be allowed to ride. West could duck, take his king or call for help, but nothing would do him any good."

By Oswald & James Jacoby
 Oswald: "Here is another lesson hand. South's six-heart contract is eminently sound. He can afford to lose the trump finesse and still come to twelve tricks consisting of three of his own trumps, the ace of spades, a

EEK & MEEK

'We Have Brought the Democratic Party Back to Life'...

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Democrats left Kansas City today with a new party charter, some old-fashioned party unity and burgeoning confidence that they are on the road back to the White House in 1976.

The party ended its unprecedented national mini-convention Sunday with national chairman Robert Strauss' triumphant declaration — "We have brought the Democratic party back to life... the Democratic party is ready to govern America again."

The three-day meeting produced the first formal constitution adopted by a major U.S. political party.

In the course of writing it, the party's principal factions also rediscovered they could deal with each other without leaving the scars that since 1968 have doomed efforts to regain national leadership.

But the convention did not bring to the fore the party's most significant need — a clear front-runner for the 1976 presidential nomination.

A pack of hopefuls wooed the 2,500 delegates and alternates in the cavernous Kansas City auditorium and the convention hotels, but no one of them made an impact strong enough to establish a favorite in the nomination sweepstakes.

Only one announced candidate, Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., was on hand. But two others soon to declare — Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia — competed for delegate attention with him and with Sens. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, Robert Byrd of West Virginia, and Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

The charter largely is a collection of existing rules and traditions, but it also embeds into party law some of the New Politics reforms that have spawned the bitterest kind of intramural feuding since the 1960s.

While abandoning the quota system that caused such trouble in 1972, the party committed itself to give blacks, women, young people and other minorities a full voice in Democratic decision-making.

It also buried some of the favorite tools of political power brokers: the unit rule and winner-take-all caucuses and primaries.

It was a struggle over some of these reforms that gave life to the mini-convention.

Blacks and women united Saturday to demand that party leaders and elected officials ease proposed charter rules on national convention delegate challenges.

Brandishing the threat of a mass walkout that would have destroyed the image of unity Strauss wanted so passionately to project, the black delegates forced the regulars into an old-fashioned backroom deal that gave reformers more than they had expected to win from the closely-divided convention.

The reformers sustained some setbacks, including rejection of their proposal to make mid-term conferences a permanent fixture.

Labor, once a unified and nearly unbeatable power in Democratic affairs, was divided between the reform and regular elements here. The losers were unions allied with AFL-CIO President George Meany.

GOP Plan to Seek More Minority Membership

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican party reformers Sunday approved a plan to encourage — but not require — state organizations to seek more party membership among minorities, women, youths and old people.

Both the Republican plan and the one adopted by Democrats in Kansas City bar any use of a quota system in delegate selection. But the Democrats required an "affirmative action" program, while the Republicans only encouraged one.

The GOP version was adopted Sunday by the "Rule 29 Committee," set up by the party's 1972 convention to reform party rules.

It still needs approval by the national GOP committee, the convention rules committee and the 1976 national convention itself before it takes effect.

The Republican national committee will have no direct power to require recruitment drives. But those states that comply will be almost assured of surviving challenges to the credentials of their national convention delegates.

In order to win unanimous approval of the Rule 29 Committee, sponsors of "positive action" to recruit minorities make it clear that states refusing to go along with the drive would not lose their convention seats on that basis alone.

The key compromise provision was that failure to produce greater minority participation will not, by itself, be a ground for disqualifying a state's convention delegation. Rep. William A. Steiger, Wis., chairman of the reform panel, said that if a state does not want to go along with the "spirit of the proposal," the only pressure that can be applied is through a credential challenge.

Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass., a sponsor of the compromise, said Sunday: "I can't envision a further compromise at this point. There is a moral commitment we must make to broaden the party's base in an active and aggressive way."

30 Ehrlichman Witnesses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John D. Ehrlichman's lawyer plans to call the first of an expected 30 witnesses today to testify on his client's behalf at the Watergate coverup trial.

The witness list includes such Watergate names as former White House Special Counsel Charles W. Colson and attorney William O. Bitman, formerly the lawyer of convicted conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr.

Other key witnesses will be called to testify about the 1971 burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist and about the 1972 hman's lawyer, William S. Frates' strategy probably is the most unusual of any of the six defendants on trial.

Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and Former White House Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman already have completed their defenses. They called just a few witnesses and based their defense mainly on their own testimony.

Ehrlichman also is expected to spend about three days on the stand defending himself.

U.S. District Judge John J.

Sirica will rule this morning on Frates' motion to call William R. Treadwell, the lawyer for Egil "Bud" Krogh, former director of the White House "plumbers" special investigative unit.

Frates wants Treadwell to swear that Krogh wrote a 1973 document exonerating Ehrlichman of the Ellsberg break-in.

Sirica already has denied an attempt by Frates to call Seymour Glazer — one of the three original federal prosecutors in the case.

When Ehrlichman is through presenting his case only former Assistant Attorney General Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson will remain.

Mardian and Parkinson both did legal work for Nixon's reelection committee after the Watergate break-in.

13 More Weeks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation went to the House today to extend unemployment compensation benefits an additional 13 weeks for workers in areas hard-hit by layoffs caused by recession and doubledigit inflation.

The measure would put an estimated $1 billion into the hands of the jobless who have exhausted their current unemployment benefits.

The House also will consider an emergency bill later this week that would create a $4 billion public service jobs program. President Ford has proposed his own $2.5 billion temporary job program.

The Senate has yet to begin consideration of either measure, but both are expected to pass before Congress adjourns.

Introducing THE SPOKE ACCOUNT

...and now SAWYER SAVINGS BANK can be your only bank

Because our banking system is now complete, you can forget about the bank you once needed for something similar to our new SPOKE accounts (Sawyer Payment Orders: Key to Economy).

WHAT ARE SPOKE ACCOUNTS?

Generally, these accounts provide a quick, convenient way to pay all your bills or to get cash. Safer than money to carry and use, they are accepted as money everywhere, and they are ideal for keeping records of important expenditures.

More specifically, in writing out each individual payment order, you are actually withdrawing funds from a no-passbook, no-interest account.

HOW DO I OPEN A SPOKE ACCOUNT?

To open your new SPOKE account, simply visit Sawyer Savings Bank and see one of our new account clerks. She will ask you to fill out a signature card and help you select from the wide assortment of payment order cover styles and colors we have available. You will then receive your free starter supply of payment orders for your new SPOKE account, along with a free Sawyer Savings Bank pen as a courtesy gift! Your fully personalized payment orders and deposit tickets will follow shortly in the mail. The minimum amount required to open a SPOKE account is $100.00. Subsequent deposits may be in any amount.

IS THERE A CHARGE FOR THIS SERVICE?

Your SPOKE account will be absolutely free of monthly charge, provided that a $200.00 balance is maintained in the account. Paid payment orders resulting in an account balance of less than $200.00 create a one-time monthly charge of $2.00. In other words, the maximum monthly charge is $2.00, depending on the balance you maintain in your account.

There will be a $2.00 charge for each "Stop Payment Order" received by us on your payment order account and a $1.00 charge for each returned payment order (for insufficient funds, signature missing, etc.) The law prohibits overdraft privileges on payment order accounts.

SENIOR CITIZENS

Realizing how difficult it is for many senior citizens to maintain a $200.00 balance in a payment order account, the above balance provisions will be waived for anyone over age 65. Simply show us your Senior Citizens Identification Card, or other proof, when you open your account.

HOW MAY I BE CERTAIN OF MY BALANCE?

Sawyer Savings Bank will send you a monthly statement of your payment order account, listing all deposits and payments from your account, along with all of your cancelled payment orders. The balance of your account will appear on your statement. This balance is easily reconcilable to your personal record in your payment order book. Additionally, any inquiries regarding your account balance will be handled quickly and cheerfully by our staff, and your answer will be an up-to-the-minute balance, not a balance that is one or two days old.

THIS IS THE ACCOUNT FOR YOU!

Sawyer Savings Bank does not require that your payment order account be "linked" in any way to a savings account. Our SPOKE accounts are available to everyone, whether or not you are presently using any of our wide range of banking services. However, if you are finding it difficult to save systematically, we will be happy to help you! All that is necessary is your signature on an authorization form, and we will transfer any predetermined amount from your SPOKE account to your Regular or Day of Deposit to Day of Withdrawal savings account each month. Both Regular and Day of Deposit to Day of Withdrawal savings accounts earn 5 1/4 % per annum at Sawyer Savings Bank, the highest rate allowed by law in New York State.

We invite you to be among the first to open a payment order account at Sawyer Savings Bank. Sawyer Savings Bank can now be your only bank. For service and satisfaction. For convenience. Forever.
